

State Labor Is For Defense but Against Draft

Federation Board to Oppose Compulsory Conscription Bill

Milwaukee—(P)—The general executive board of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor issued a statement today stating that "we are in thorough accord with and will support measures designed to build an adequate defense program for this nation" but are "opposed to the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory conscription bill."

The board announced that the statement was in response to inquiries raised by labor unions and their members.

The board said that "because we hold democracy and the democratic way of life in such high esteem that we must voice our protests against some of the measures now being advanced under the guise that they are necessary to national defense."

"We do not believe that compulsory conscription is necessary to establish the trained man power for defense," the statement continued. "We believe that such defense can be built in accord with the traditional American policy of voluntary enlistment during peace times."

Civil Rights
"Compulsory conscription would bring to our nation militarism with all its evils of regimentation under which civil rights and liberties would be weakened and curtailed."

"We are vigorously opposed to any scheme for compulsory industrial labor conscription which is being advocated by some militarists. Any such scheme is merely a plan for forced labor repugnant to all American ideals."

"Under any plans of compulsory conscription for either military or industrial service a wide-spread disruption of our whole economic system would follow."

The statement said that the board was calling on "our representatives in congress" to prevent enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth measure and "any other legislation seeking to impose either military or industrial conscription on the people of this nation."

Naval Plane Noses Under Water; Fliers Saved From Drowning

North Chicago, Ill.—(P)—A naval reserve amphibian plane carrying three men on a training flight nosed under water in a practice landing, some 500 yards offshore in Lake Michigan today.

Press headquarters at nearby Great Lakes Naval Training station said the crew was rescued by a naval crash boat standing watch and its members were not injured.

The crew included the pilot, Lieut. W. E. Larned, Oak Park, Ill.; Seaman William M. Christensen, North Chicago, and Radioman Edwin J. Pliffner, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. All are naval reservists.

Great Lakes officials said the ship, a J-2F3 navy type, came down on a rough sea in its practice landing and that when the pontoon gave way the plane nosed under.

The crash boat crew yanked the flyers out of the water, took them ashore and to the naval dispensary where, after being wrapped in blankets and given hot coffee, they were reported in satisfactory condition.

Roosevelt for Draft to Build U. S. Defense

President Says Nation Must Have Army Trained, Ready

Washington—(P)—Shortly after President Roosevelt declared that a system of selective training was "essential to adequate national defense," the senate military committee rejected today a proposal to limit compulsory service at this time to 900,000 men.

The committee voted down, 7 to 2, an amendment to the Burke-Wadsworth bill, offered by Senator Lee (D-Okla.), which would have limited the number of men to be drafted between Oct. 1 and April 1, 1941 to 400,000 and between April 1 and Oct. 1, 1941, to 500,000.

This action and rejection of an amendment by Lee for a 90-day period of voluntary enlistments seemed to have cleared the way for a final committee vote on the legislation next Monday.

Mr. Roosevelt's views on the question of compulsory training were expressed at a press conference when a newsman said that a report was going around that the chief executive was "not so hot about conscription." The newsman asked Mr. Roosevelt what he could say on the matter.

Emphasizing the pointlessness of his statement, the president permitted this direct quotation: "I am distinctly in favor of a selective service training bill and I consider it essential to adequate national defense."

While the senate committee put the finishing touches on its version of the Burke-Wadsworth legislation the house military committee heard a succession of witnesses on the same measure. Some urged that voluntary enlistment be tried before a draft; other declared the voluntary system had "failed" already and the draft must now be enacted.

As the senate bill stood with rejection of the 900,000-man limitation, it would call for registration of all men between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive. An estimated 4,500,000 of about 8,000,000 registered would qualify for service, army officials report.

Lee's 90-day amendment would have delayed active conscription for several weeks after enactment of the bill. Without that or any similar restriction the army has planned to call its first draft group of 400,000 men about Oct. 1, after calling out national guard and reserve officers Sept. 1. Special legislation for the latter is before the senate.

At the White House press conference, the newsman's inquiry about Mr. Roosevelt's views prompted the president to make a lengthy review of the conscription question.

He also announced that the and Democratic tax leaders in congress were agreed that an excess profits tax should be enacted without delay.

All manufacturers working on defense orders know that such legislation was going to be passed, he said and were proceeding to assemble materials even though contracts have not yet been signed.

The president said Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee hoped to get final action in a month. He added that the legislation would clear up the important question of amortization which the manufacturers were interested in.

'Foreign Agents' Reported to be Just 'Refugees'

War Department Says Statement on Cleanup Of Aliens Was in Error

Washington—(P)—The war department today labeled as erroneous an announcement by Secretary Stimson yesterday that 81 "foreign agents" had been detained "for deportation or other disposition" the department said, but it was admitted that the army did not know whether any of them were foreign agents. Perhaps 60 or more of the 81 were reported from Panama to be of German origin.

Officials of the Republic of Panama said the aliens were known generally as "refugees."

All told, about 800 or 1,000 such "refugees" were given temporary haven several months ago in the republic and some were given temporary employment on Panama canal projects, the army said. The 81 men and women detained were among the latter number and are subject to deportation simply because their identification and passport papers are not in order, it was said.

An army official said that the announcement made by Secretary Stimson yesterday was the result of an error in transmission. The word "aliens" was said to have been misinterpreted for "agents" in a verbal report of the detention.

The secretary of war announced the detention of the 81 yesterday when he disclosed that all aliens, other than Panamanians, had been discharged from United States government or military positions in the canal zone.

Only American soldiers or American engineers, he added, are employed on fire control equipment in the canal zone.

Leopoldo Arosemena, Panama's minister of interior and acting foreign minister, said at Panama that the 81 persons held for deportation were mostly European "refugees."

They were picked up and turned over to Canal zone officials, he said, when it was found that their papers were not in order.

United States army intelligence officers at Panama disclaimed knowledge that 81 foreign agents were being held.

Steamship lines responsible for leaving the refugees in the canal zone, informed sources said, may be required to return them, but difficulty was expected because the war has stepped operations of some European lines.

Favor Cut in Work Hours at Express Agency

Members of Emergency Board Give Report to President Roosevelt

Washington—(P)—An emergency investigation board, working to avert a threatened strike, recommended to President Roosevelt today a reduction from 48 to 44 hours in the basic work-week of 25,000 to 30,000 employees of the Railway Express agency.

The board, composed of John P. Devaney, Dexter M. Keizer and Harry A. Millis, was appointed by the President July 10 under railway labor act provisions for trying to settle labor disputes without strikes.

The employees, represented by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, had voted to strike for the 44-hour week.

Selection of the board preserved the status quo for 60 days, 30 days being allowed for the board's investigation and report and an equal period for the president's decision on the board's report.

The board said that having granted the teamsters union a 44-hour week the express agency had "precipitated a problem which could be solved only by extending the same work-week to a considerable part of the balance of its employees, who in May, 1940, totaled about 43,000."

Roach Stays on Job, Smith's Reply to Frey

Heil's Research Director Demands Roach be Given Walking Papers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—State Treasurer John M. Smith today declared that he stands squarely behind John W. Roach of Appleton, whom he chose last year to head the beverage tax division, and that Roach would not be dismissed in spite of such a recommendation by August Frey, Governor Heil's director of research.

"Nobody has anything to say about my department except John M. Smith," the state treasurer commented, referring to the fact that as a constitutionally elected and independent state officer, Governor Heil has no power to dictate policies or actions in the state treasury or its divisions.

Yesterday Heil said that he had received a report of an investigation by Frey's bureau which arose out of a dispute over alleged delay in the delivery of liquor stamps for Roach's division. In it, Heil told interviewers, Frey had demanded that the governor ask Smith to dismiss Roach as a man "incompetent to hold public office."

Smith disclosed that he had read Frey's report before Heil made it public. He indicated that he regretted the publicity.

Frey's hostility toward Roach reportedly began several weeks ago when a Madison newspaper published a charge that Frey, as comptroller of state purchasing, had held up requisitions for liquor stamps at a time when the Beverage Tax division was going through a rush period due to the eagerness of liquor dealers to replenish their inventories just before the new federal defense taxes became effective. Frey's delay, it was charged, cost liquor men thousands of dollars.

According to capitol reports, Frey assumed that Roach furnished the information to the newspaper, although the Appleton man never was quoted by name.

He promptly started an investigation of liquor stamp purchases, the report of which he transmitted to Heil yesterday. Meanwhile a general audit of the division's records is underway, according to the governor's office.

Frey earlier yesterday told newspapermen that if Heil did not make his recommendations about Roach public, Frey himself would make a public announcement of his report.

Roach this week is engaged in plans for keeping a special squad of liquor inspectors on hand in the army maneuvers area in western Wisconsin later this month.

He came to his job more than a year ago when Smith picked him from a list of candidates certified in a civil service examination. He had earlier served in the same capacity under Treasurer Robert K. Henry, and has held comparable positions in the federal service.

Italian Airmen Bomb British Sea Squadron

Report Battleship Set Afire, Other Warships Hit in Mediterranean

Rome—(P)—The Italian high command reported today that Italian air bombardment of a British naval squadron south of Formentera, in the Balearic Islands, had set afire a battleship and scored hits on several other warships.

Stefani, Italian news agency, said the attacked British warships, some of them having the last of Gibraltar's civilian population aboard, had left Gibraltar suddenly, apparently in fear of Italian bombings of the fortress.

Formentera is the smallest and southernmost of the four major islands in the Balearic group, in the Mediterranean about 425 miles east and slightly north of the British naval base of Gibraltar.)

The high command's daily communique said the attack was made on a "naval squadron" of two battleships, two aircraft carriers and a number of smaller vessels coming from Gibraltar.

It also reported the British submarine Oswald had been torpedoed and sunk in the middle Ionian sea last night by the Italian destroyer Ugolino Vivaldi.

The destroyer picked up and took prisoners 52 members of the crew of 55, including Capt. David Fraser, the communique said.

Italian forces have occupied Dab-el, 27 miles south of Moyale in Kenya Colony; it was announced, after a strong counter-attack by the British, who were repulsed with heavy losses.

Charges of treason, attacks on the security of the state and desertion to a foreign country in time of war were laid before the military court of the Thirteenth region, presided over by General Frey.

Rain Tons of Steel, Lead On 100 Towns

London—(P)—Crippling blows from British bombers on vital German centers were reported authoritatively today as give-and-take air warfare still surged over the English channel.

British fliers, raining tons of steel and explosives on more than 100 German cities and towns, an authoritative British source said, have laid the port of Hamburg almost entirely in ruins and have scored heavily on the docks and airplane factories of Bremen and the communications nerve center at Cologne in the past three months.

One German bomber was believed by observers to have been brought down in the sea off the northeast coast of Scotland after a Nazi squadron had dumped nine high explosive and 40 incendiary bombs—mostly on a golf course outside of town—this morning.

Eye-witnesses said they saw the plane fall into the water after British fighter planes had splattered it with tracer bullets.

No casualties were reported from the German attack although the bombs blasted craters 40 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

Bombardment of a wireless station and crippling of a German supply ship in air operations off the Norwegian coast were reported by the admiralty.

The port of Bremen, with its shipbuilding yards, docks and the Focke-Wulf Aircraft factory, "has had thousands of bombs rained upon it," it was reported, while Cologne, axis for international traffic in Europe, has been pounded heavily.

British airmen were asserted to have made attacks on more than 1,000 objectives in the past three months—attacks of "genuine weight and importance."

Known to Tourists
Many of the places hammered by the British in the air offensive are old world communities known to thousands of tourists.

These places, it was asserted, have been "converted into military and industrial centers vital to the military needs of Germany."

All attacks, this source said, were "planned with studious care with the object of avoiding damage, if possible, to towns and cities which are non-military objectives."

The British air offensive has covered objectives in enemy country from Borkum, in the Frisian islands off the extreme northwest German coast, in the North sea, to Rugen Island in the Baltic sea.

The air ministry said a "successful" daylight raid had been made also yesterday on the German-held airport at Cherbourg, France. It acknowledged, however, that three of a strong force of coastal command warplanes failed to return.

On the other hand, the German high command said "all eight" British bombers were shot down before they could reach their objective at Cherbourg.

Submarine Sunk
It reported also that a British submarine was sunk by a U-boat, one merchantman was sunk and others were damaged in air attacks on convoys off the east coast, and an airplane factory was set afire in "another especially effective raid" at Norwich in eastern England.

Britons, wondering whether the Nazi blitzkrieg would come soon—or at all—puzzled over a "tabloid" leaflet laid by German bombers at Norwich.

Units of Four U. S. Armies are Mobilizing for Mass Maneuvers

Washington—(P)—At peacetime peaks in training and equipment, units of four United States armies were moving by rail and road today toward imaginary front lines on theoretical battlefields.

Mobilizing for the most extensive field exercises since the World war, 301,000 regular army, national guard and reserve troops prepared to give a preview of mass maneuvers which, if congress approves, may become a regular practice.

Extending its former policy of holding maneuvers in only one army area each year, the war department has ordered exercises in all four areas this summer. They will be a prelude to possible mobilization of all or part of the national guard for a full year.

The length of the maneuvers has been extended from 14 days to 21 days, on top of an extra week's field training which was given to the national guard during the past year.

Although there are still bothersome shortages in modern weapons and supplies, the war department said that the troops would go into mock action with more complete peacetime equipment than ever. All regular army troops and many guardsmen will carry new semi-automatic rifles. New anti-tank guns will be employed. An increased number of motor transport units will be used.

Tanks Will Be Absent
Markedly absent, however, will be the thundering tanks of the armored forces. Two divisions in process of organization will continue to train as units rather than be scattered among the four armies.

Trucks and cars will be used in the maneuvers to simulate tanks. Planes also will be limited, to avoid hampering the air corps expansion. More than three-quarters of the mobile ground forces will be concentrated in the four army areas, giving a practical test of troop-movement facilities, including 466 special trains, busses, trucks and automobiles.

Largest of the concentrations already is well underway in northern New York, where 91,000 officers and men of the first army are assembling in the Plattsburg-Water-town area for maneuvers Aug. 5 to 25.

Numbers of troops and dates of the exercises in those areas are: second army, 65,000, Sparta, Wis., Aug. 11 to 31; third army, 65,000, Sabine River-Alexandria, La., Aug. 4 to 24; fourth army, divided between Fort Lewis, Wash., and Camp Ripley, Minn., Aug. 4 to 24.

Steamer Escapes From French Port

London—(P)—The 1,864-ton Polish steamer Kroman has arrived in a British port after escaping from Dakar, French port in Senegal, under the very noses of Germans who had arrived to seize her, the admiralty announced today.

The Kroman had been immobilized by the removal of a vital part of her machinery, the admiralty said, but the captain made a makeshift replacement and steamed out of the harbor after learning of the arrival of the Germans by air.

"By improvisation and engineering skill the engines of the Kroman were made to work," an admiralty communique said. "She then escaped through the harbor defenses and on reaching the open sea set her course for a British port."

"All of this was accomplished although there were no charts on board."

Scolded for Taking Money, Boy Kills Self

San Antonio, Texas—(P)—Joe Doran, 13, wanted a ball. He took 25 cents from his father to buy one.

The father, bus driver Nicholas Doran, scolded Joe for taking the money.

"I don't want to live anymore," the boy sobbed to his mother. A few minutes later the mother found Joe dying of a pistol wound. Justice of the Peace O. L. Wiley said it was a case of suicide.

Slayer Escapes From Hospital for Insane

Waupun—(P)—John Magnuson, 62, convicted of the "rule bomb" slaying of Mrs. James R. Chapman, of Marshfield Dec. 27, 1922, has escaped from the Central Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

Dr. J. F. Klepper, superintendent of the hospital, said Magnuson had been missing since 5 p. m. yesterday. The superintendent said the prisoner lately had been rational except on the subject of his conviction and had been assigned as a trust to take care of the shrubs and flowers in the hospital yard.

Magnuson was sentenced to life imprisonment April 4, 1923.

Waives Hearing on Securities Charge

Milwaukee—(P)—Harry M. Lenart, president of the defunct investment house which bore his name, waived preliminary examination today on warrants charging sale of unlicensed securities. He was bound over to the municipal court for trial under bond of $10,000.

G. Kenneth Crowell, deputy director of the state securities department, said that the two warrants contained 37 counts and involved about $80,000.

Babson Sees Business Gain in Next 6 Months

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass.—Business in the second half of this year should be very active in most lines—may be the best final half in history. More real jobs, fatter pay envelopes, modestly higher farm income, bigger dividends than in the first half of 1940, or in the final six months of 1939 are assured. There will be no noticeable gain in living costs, but taxes will be the heaviest in a quarter-century. The next few months will be a period of intense industrial activity as our mammoth defense program gets under way.

This defense program will put the "oomph" in the industrial boom ahead. If peace comes in Europe before the program gets going full blast, there will be a temporary halt in the upswing. The longer peace is postponed, however, the greater the possibility that business activty will break all previous records some time in 1940 or 1941. Specifically, I estimate that business in the second half will run about six per cent above the same period of 1939 and also six per cent higher than in the first six months of this year.

Readers will recall that in my outlook for the first half of 1940 I predicted a gain of 10 to 15 per cent over the same months of 1939, but a downward trend from the high levels of January first. This gain was 11.5 per cent and business is six per cent under the New Year level. I also said that we would have either a boom or a crash (no half-way course) in the second half of the year. I felt that it was impossible at that time to say which it would be. Now, however, I predict for the balance of this year a real boom in most industries.

Pace-setter in this industrial expansion ahead will be the heavy industries. Steel operations are scheduled to reach a new peak for six-months period on record. They are entering the second half at close to 90 per cent of capacity, the highest mid-summer figure since 1929. Machine shops, metal foundries, air-

Election Will Be Decided on Issues: Willkie

Voters Independent, Easily Cross Party Lines, Candidate Says

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY
Colorado Springs, Colo. — (3) — Wendell L. Willkie thinks the coming election will be decided on issues rather than party lines.

Willkie made that clear yesterday in a joint press conference with William Allen White, the Emporia, Kas., editor.

Questioned by reporters, Willkie said he believed "fully half the voters are independent — they cross party lines very easily."

"There used to be pride among many people about their party partisanship," Willkie continued. "Now they are proud of their independence."

White expressed a similar view, telling reporters that independent voters would aid Willkie in the November election.

"The general drift is toward us. I think it is in the stars," White added.

White was asked whether he meant that Willkie would be elected. He replied that the Republican nominee "or someone equally good will be elected."

Willkie arranged to spend most of Saturday going over Republican organizational problems with Chairman Joe Martin of the national committee and other party leaders.

The nominee gave his press conference a definite impression that he would tell the organization leaders his plans but that he would map out most of his campaign for himself.

Willkie remarked to reporters that new census figures had demonstrated that Washington, D. C., was a "boom town." While many cities lost population during the past decade, the nominee said, Washington gained.

"I shall have something to say about that during the coming campaign."

Youngsters Rehearse Daily For 'Mikado' Comic Opera

A casual visitor entering the Pierce park pavilion any morning or afternoon this week can hardly believe his eyes when he sees a group of youngsters still in knickerbockers and play suits scampering about the stage in the familiar antics and business of a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, while other children outside on playground swings and slides.

An entire juvenile cast of Appleton children ranging from eight to twelve years of age is preparing to give "The Mikado" in the Pierce park pavilion August 18 and 19. The popular light opera is being directed as part of the city recreation program by Mrs. J. F. Bannister, county supervisor of recreation, who believes that such an undertaking never has been attempted west of New York.

The nine principals and 25 other players and members of the chorus are Appleton children from the Pierce park and Erb park vicinities. Work on the production was begun about three weeks ago. Daily rehearsals of the principals each morning and the chorus each afternoon are being held this week, and the entire company will rehearse together next week. The first dress rehearsal is scheduled for Friday morning, August 9.

Performances of the opera, which is a burlesque on things Japanese as at that time conceived, and a jest at officials who try to take on too much authority, also will be given in various halls of Appleton, Kaukauna, Hortonville, Green Bay, Oshkosh and other places during the fall and winter, according to Mrs. Bannister. The production of other Gilbert and Sullivan light operas "Pinafore" and "Iolanthe" will follow completion of the present undertaking.

In Leading Roles
The principals in the opera, which takes place in the courtyard and garden of the Lord High Executioner, Ko-Ko, in Titipu, Japan, are as follows:

The Mikado of Japan, Paul Verhoeven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Verhoeven, 609 W. Eighth street; Nanki-Poo, his son "a wandering minstrel," Richard Reetz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Reetz, 1521 N. Appleton street; Ko-Ko, the Lord High Executioner, Richard Verhoeven; Pooh-Bah, Lord High everything else, Donald Knuijt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Knuijt, 1339 W. Harris street; Yum-Yum, Ko-Ko's ward "from school," Gloria Van Handel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Van Handel, 220 E. Brewster street; Peep-Bo, her friend, Norma Jean Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Schmidt, 808 S. Fairview street; Pitti-Sing, another friend, Ariene Shebilske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shebilske, 135 N. Bennett street; Kalisha, a lady at court, Georgiana Drury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Drury, 1607 W. College avenue; and Fish-Tush, a courier, Willard Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Smith, 1715 N. Morrison street.

City playground workers are assisting with various parts of the production. Miss Eva Hoffman and Miss Blanche Kloes direct the dance numbers, and costumeing is under the direction of Miss Sadie Junco. The stage manager is Lawrence Mackin, and Claude Kohl is master of properties with Donald Hale as electrician. Sets are being designed and painted by J. F. Bannister. The pianist is Miss Marion Rule.

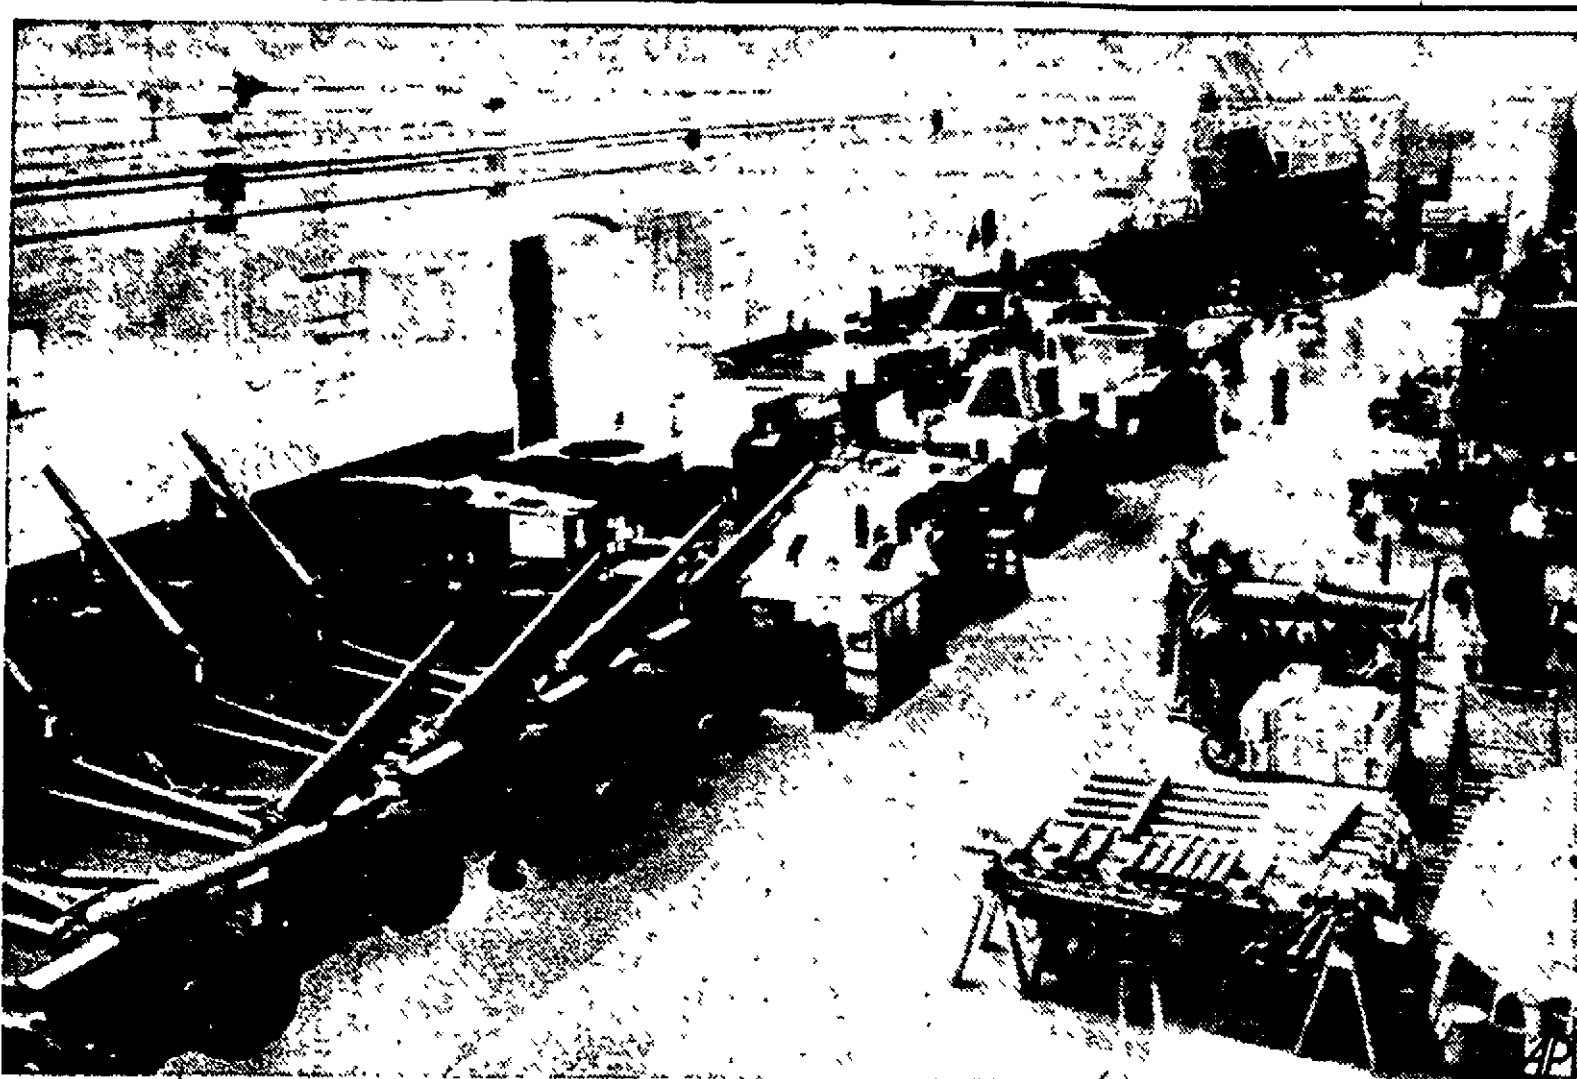

Koehler Opposed to Entrance Into War

Milwaukee — (4) — Dr. John P. Koehler, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, told a Milwaukee audience last night that "the best way to make the world safe for democracy is to make it safe in America first."

"I am not a pacifist," Dr. Koehler declared, "but I am opposed to our entrance into any foreign war in order to save a foreign system, because that is what we sought to escape when we built America."

Reelect President of Synodical Conference

Chicago — (4) — Dr. Ludwig Fuenbringer, president of the Concordia synodical conference in St. Louis, Mo., was re-elected president of the Lutheran Synodical conference at its thirty-seventh biennial convention today.

The convention's 150 delegates, representing nearly 1,700,000 church members, opened yesterday and will continue until Tuesday. Resolutions or statements on various church doctrines were expected to be formulated the final day.

Among the topics before the delegates was Negro missions, a subject which the Rev. E. H. Wildgrube of New Orleans was scheduled to discuss tonight.

War Puts Damper on Yearly Fling of All Englishmen

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (4) — How about it if you and I sit for a bit on the white chalk-cliffs of England's Dover, perched on a rocky promontory that is washed by white-capped seas.

The narrow cobbled streets—swept and scrubbed to Godly cleanliness by the good fisherwomen—climb and squirm their way about until the wayfarer becomes lost in the labyrinth.

Plump seagulls perch on the roofs, waiting complacently like fat merchants of Baghdad for something of profit to turn up. Artists who flock to this mecca lay aside their paints, come the Sabbath, for that is the Lord's day and no man may work. These God-fearing folk who go down to the sea in ships attend chapel and then sit quietly at home to read their bibles. If you violate the day they likely will lose you into the surf.

St. Ives is only one of many fascinating places the vacationist can visit. But wherever the Briton goes, it's an outdoor affair. He's a simple soul in many ways, and is quite happy lying on his back under a tree, or poling a punt on the Thames. Whatever his pastime is, however, it must be in the open—in short, he's the sort of bloke who likes to tramp in the rain.

By this weekend (don't forget, we've decreed there is no war) the average Briton will be on vacation. And he will be holidaying in exactly the same place, in exactly the same way, as he has done every year of his life, and as his father and grandfather and great-grandfather did before him. The Englishman doesn't change—well, not much.

He will be in the same boarding-house, at the same table by the window, in the same seat. He will be eating roast beef and boiled mutton, just as have his forebears clear back to ample-bellied Cedric the Saxon.

Thus he will be exhibiting that characteristic of bull-doggedness, or whatever you want to call it; which observers say is one of his prime assets in the conflict with Herr Hitler—oh, blimey. I knew we'd get shunted off onto the war again. What's the use!

Canaan, N. H. — (4) — Six men were killed today when a truck, owned by the Melvin F. Burgess contracting company of Baltimore, Md., and a Boston and Maine train collided at a grade crossing in west Canaan.

Officials of the company identified four of the dead as Robert B. Lick of West Jefferson, N. C., crew foreman; Waldo Beard, driver of the truck, and Robert L. Matthews, both of Hillsboro, N. H., and Walter Dietz of Cobleskill, N. Y.

Country dwellers betake themselves to London town, to gaze in awe at the grim tower and gasp at the blazing crown-jewels guarded there and get delightful creeps in the musty dungeons. Like Alice in Wonderland they wander about the city, weaving a tale that will thrill their grandchildren.

And the London clerk (pronounced "clark") and baker and draper head for the country or their favorite seaside resorts—Brighton or Margate or maybe as far afield as the quaint old fishing village of St. Ives way down in Cornwall near Land's End. Union Official, Former Racketeer, Resigns

New York — (4) — Joseph (Socks) Lanza, once known as the head of the "fish market racketeers," resigned today as business agent of the United Sea Food Workers Union local and the Union's A. F. of L. charter, revoked two days ago on orders of William Green, was automatically restored.

Green, the A. F. L. president, ordered the charter withdrawn because the union had re-elected Lanza despite his prison record. He had been sentenced to two years in 1937 for violating the anti-trust laws in New York's fresh water fish industry.

Roosevelt Fans May Give Aid To LaFollette

Neither Democratic Faction in State Has Senatorial Candidate

BY OHN WYNGAARD
(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison—Failure of the two rival factions of Wisconsin New Deal Democrats to put up their own New Deal candidate for the United States senate has encouraged Progressives to hope that Senator Robert M. LaFollette will again command the support of Wisconsin Roosevelt followers in his campaign for reelection.

Although there are three candidates contesting for the Democratic senatorial nomination, there is nothing to show that they will get the support of either the regular New Dealers led by National Committee-man Charles E. Broughton of Sheboygan, or the insurgent members of the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, headed by Gustave J. Keller of Appleton.

All three are known as conservatives, and are unlikely to get the support of the Keller or Broughton Roosevelt Democrats, it is believed here.

They include James E. Kerwin, fast friend of Robert K. Henry, who recently turned Republican, and chairman of the 1938 anti-LaFollette Republican-Democratic coalition committee, William D. Carroll, conservative, pro-German Democrat in the presidential primary election last spring, and under fire in recent months by both Broughton and Keller, and James E. Finnegan, former attorney general, closely allied with conservative Milwaukee Democrats.

Thus it is likely that whoever is nominated by the Democrats for senator, LaFollette will get the votes of a considerable number of New Dealers if only for the reason that there is no approved, outstanding New Dealer running for senator on the Democratic ticket.

Meanwhile it appeared that despite recent efforts of the New Dealer regulars to appease the Keller rebels, the latter are going forward with their project of taking over the state Democratic party machinery.

Although the Broughton faction made what looked like a pacifying gesture by putting Keller's name on its ticket as a candidate for attorney general, the DPOW today had a complete state ticket entered in opposition to the Broughton slate filed by Thomas King of Oconomowoc, unofficially named Wisconsin Democratic campaign manager this year. Keller's name, however, also appears on the DPOW slate for attorney general, so that he will be the only candidate without opposition in the primary.

Bossie Changed His Mind About Career

Scottsbluff, Neb. — (4) — Bob Nerud, 21, wanted to become a rodeo star and Bossie, the family cow, was the only critter available for practice.

But Bossie, astonished when Bob climbed on board, headed for the fence, paused suddenly and tossed Bob across.

On his way one of the cow's horns caught him. His injuries aren't serious, but Bob says his interest in a rodeo career has lagged.

War Situation Today British Claim German Seaports Destroyed in Nightly Air Raids

Virtual destruction of the great German seaport of Hamburg by Royal Air Force bombers was claimed by an authoritative British source today while Germany countered with the statement that its own raiders had struck new devastating blows against Britain's merchant fleet.

The British source, summing up the work of the R. A. F. in the past three months, said Hamburg was only one of the military objectives attacked in nightly raids. Thousands of bombs have been rained on the port of Bremen with its ship-building yards, docks and aircraft factory, the same source said, and added that more than 100 German cities and towns where military objectives are situated had been attacked.

Official Germany has said little about the R. A. F. raids, carried on day and night, beyond insisting that they were against non-military points.

Today's Nazi claim was that the air force has sunk a large merchantman, a tanker and a mine patrol boat yesterday, and that a submarine, returning to its base, had reported sinking 72,000 tons of shipping in an unspecified space of time.

The German air force, as usual, continued its attacks on the British isles, dropping bombs on Scotland and Wales and varying the daily custom in England by dropping Hitler "peace or destruction" pamphlets.

In the Mediterranean area the R. A. F. claimed destruction of a large ammunition dump near Bardia, Libya, and other less spectacular raids on African posts held by the Italians.

Italy reported her air force had attacked a British naval squadron south of Formentera, in the Balearic Islands, and said a battleship had been set on fire and several other warships had been hit.

The Italian high command also said the British submarine Oswald had been torpedoed and sunk and 52 of its crew of 55 taken prisoner.

The Supreme Soviet was called to a second day session to act on admission to the Soviet Union of territories which extended the Soviet frontier from ice-free ports in the Baltic to the Danube river.

Up for admission are Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, and the former Rumanian territory of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina.

At Vichy, France, Raphael Albert, minister of justice, announced that the new supreme court of justice would meet Aug. 8 at Riom to begin the trials of men charged with crimes against the nation.

Former Premier Edouard Daladier and three men who were in his cabinet are among those to be tried—on charge of responsibility for the French defeat.

Almanacs Point to Next Week As Logical Blitzkrieg Period

BY EDWIN STOUT
London — (4) — The almanacs say that if Adolf Hitler is going to start his blitzkrieg on England this month the best times for it will be next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings.

If the fuhrer passes up those days, the next best time in September, from the second to the seventh, Third choice would be Oct. 1-6, then Oct. 30-Nov. 4.

All of those are periods when the tides will be the highest.

The British are inclined to believe that, if the Germans don't make the stab by mid-September, no invasion will be attempted until next spring. Ordinary prudence

Tennessee Again Goes Democratic
Nashville, Tenn. — (4) — A landslide Democratic primary victory headed the veteran K. D. McKellar today towards a fifth consecutive term in the United States senate.

Backed by the powerful Memphis organization of national committee-man E. H. Crump, McKellar and Governor Prentice Cooper won by party-heavy majorities in yesterday's party voting. Cooper is seeking his second two-year term as governor.

Democratic nomination usually leads to victory in the November general elections as far as major state-wide Tennessee offices are concerned.

Returns from 1,954 of the state's 2,278 precincts gave McKellar 198,643 votes to 114,711 for John R. Neal, Knoxville lawyer, and 5,576 for Claude Toler of Paris, his other opponent.

Cooper polled 211,072 compared with 37,608 by George Dempster, Knoxville manufacturer, and 2,145 for Bailey Wray, also of Knoxville.

Send Letter Favoring Amendments to Law
Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, said today a letter had been sent telling Senator Alexander Wiley that the chamber favors the adoption of the Smith amendments to the labor relations act. RELIEF CLIENTS GET HAMS—Hams, 3,800 pounds of them, were distributed to Outagamie county relief clients yesterday under the federal surplus commodities program. Here is a picture of the line of relief clients receiving their quota at the depot in the basement of the old post office building. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Surplus Hams are Given to Relief Clients in County

Big, tender hams are no longer a luxury which may be enjoyed only by those earning plenty of money to buy them, for in this country, even those who have been forced to the relief rolls because of circumstances can eat ham.

Hundreds of relief clients in Outagamie county can prove it because Wednesday they were treated to hams on the federal government under the surplus commodities program.

The hams were cut into weights relief families in weights according to their needs. In Appleton, relief clients came to the old post office building, the distribution center, while in the remainder of the county, the hams were delivered to homes by public welfare department trucks.

The shipment, which came from Fond du Lac for this area, in weight totaled 3,800 pounds, according to F. A. W. Hammond, Appleton relief director. The hams were packed by Cudahy and were shipped to Fond du Lac in carloads then distributed by truck, Hammond said.

The hams were cut into weights of three to ten pounds for distribution according to the needs of the relief families.

Credits War Jitters As Major Factor in Music Business Boom

Chicago — (AP) — War jitters were credited yesterday with helping to boom the music business.

William Howard Beasley, of Dallas, Texas, president of the National Association of Music Merchants, said that manufacturers and dealers expected to sell between 135,000 and 140,000 new pianos this year, which would make 1940 the best year for the sale of manual pianos since 1925.

Makers and distributors of other instruments, he said, also had reported notable gains in sales, best sellers, he said, also had reported notable gains in sales, best sellers, including trumpets, clarinets, saxophones which are returning to popular favor after a slump) and guitars.

"The uncertainties in world affairs, emphasized by preponderant attention given to news of the European war and its implications," he said, "have led many persons to occupy their spare time with music. More and more persons are finding a release from the tenseness and uneasiness experienced everywhere today, in some sort of musical expression."

Carrozzo Adds No Dignity To American Citizenship

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York—Should success attend the efforts of the federal government in its various proceedings against Mike Carrozzo, the gunman and racketeer who operates under the charter of the American Federation of Labor in Chicago, it will then be in order—in fact, mandatory—to inquire into the legitimacy of his citizenship. Citizen Carrozzo was naturalized on July 6, 1937, after two previous applications had been withdrawn on the strength of warnings that if he pursued them he would be blackballed. He came to the United States from Italy in 1906, and did not apply for citizenship until Nov. 17, 1926. In July, 1927, he withdrew this application—in which, incidentally, he gave his address as the Drake hotel, Chicago, an expensive house which would have been beyond the means of a legitimate leader of a union of day laborers.

Carrozzo next applied in August, 1927, barely a month after the withdrawal of his first attempt, and withdrew this petition on Sept. 27, 1928.

This third and successful petition was filed on Jan. 29, 1937, and granted on July 6 of that year.

The current Sherman act indictment against him and the pending income-tax case, in which the old habitue of the Chicago vice district has posted securities of $277,251 to lift a lien of $241,088 from his country estate, concern a period which antedates the granting of his citizenship. If it should be shown that Mike was engaged in illegal activities within five years before his petition finally was granted, his naturalization will be seriously impugned. Proceedings to nullify it will then become the obvious duty of the department of justice, which now has jurisdiction over such matters.

That Mike, in his capacity of labor leader, could have acquired by means consistent with the professed ideals of the American Federation of Labor a sufficient income to deserve a deficit and penalty of $241,088 in two years, to say nothing of the large income which he did receive for those years, is not to be considered. If he acquired the money or a portion of it by corrupt dealings with the paving ring in Chicago, or by extortion from laborers, any portion of it which was obtained before July 6, 1937, when he was granted citizenship, will provide a basis of inquiry into his naturalization.

Honest Immigrants May Be Disillusioned

Of course, there is a difference between the tight, legal proof of the exact dates at which Mike received his various items of income and the nature of the services involved and his notorious character as a gunman and racketeer. He has always been an associate of criminals of the Capone and labor racket in Chicago, and the fact that the court permitted him to become naturalized at all, after the withdrawal of two previous applications, adds no dignity to American citizenship.

For almost 20 years he had been a notorious character in Chicago, where he took up residence in the brothel districts within a year after his arrival, and humble, honest immigrants, aspiring to citizenship as a great honor and privilege, are likely to be disillusioned on hearing that a Mike Carrozzo could obtain the same certificate. Nevertheless, Mike got it on his third attempt, and a citizen he may remain unless the evidence in the racketeering or shakedown case, better known as the Sherman act case, and the income tax proceedings show positively that he was racketeering before the final papers were issued.

The return for 1937 was not made until March, 1938, so the filing of a fraudulent return, if fraud be

Goodland Says Swimming Pool Ready by Spring

Works Board Meets To Study Contract, Plans, Specifications

The contract, plans and specifications for the Hunter swimming pool, which the council voted to build at Erb park Wednesday night, were being studied by the board of public works this afternoon.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., said this morning that the contracts will be signed as soon as possible and the city then will immediately advertise for excavation and construction proposals.

The mayor said he expects the bids will be received late this month giving the contractor September and early October to complete construction of the pool. Landscaping work will be finished next spring but it is expected the swimming pool will be ready for use at the opening of the swimming season next year.

Changes in the plans submitted by the Hunter Swimming Pool company such as open dressing rooms instead of closed ones, a tunnel to house wires and conduit and possibly more expansion joints in this climate will be suggested before the plans are accepted, the mayor said.

The pool will be saucer-shaped and circular, 150 feet in diameter and will cost $48,709 including engineering fees of $9,103. A sand beach, 25 feet wide and a sidewalk, 8 feet wide, will circle the pool.

A provision in the contract stipulates that in the event the construction bid exceeds the Hunter estimate by more than 10 per cent the city shall have the right to reject all bids and will own the Hunter company nothing.

The swimming pool fund of $15,000, placed in the budget last November, has been set aside to pay the early obligations of the contract.

Fair Weather Follows Rain; Cloudy and Warmer Saturday

Following a night of heavy downpours and spasmic showers, the weather cleared up early today and ideal summer weather was enjoyed. Warmer temperatures, however, are in prospect for tomorrow. Light breezes and cloudy skies kept the sun in check and the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building registered a pleasant 80 degrees early this afternoon.

The rain cut loose about 8:30 last evening and continued at intervals during the night. A total of .97 of an inch of water fell.

Partly cloudy weather is predicted tonight and Saturday with warmer temperatures tomorrow. Highest and lowest temperatures during the 24 hours preceding 9

Heil Commutes Rammer's Term

Governor Heil has granted executive clemency to Nicholas Rammer, sentenced at Appleton Dec. 7, 1937, to four terms totaling one to 13 years for larceny and being a repeater, it was announced today. Rammer's sentence has been commuted to one term of one to eight years, according to the Associated Press.

Governor Heil granted an absolute pardon to Edward Ermis, sentenced in Marinette county Oct. 13, 1938, to five years for first-degree manslaughter.

Others granted clemency were: Louis Wysocki, sentenced in Milwaukee June 29, 1935 to a term of 3 to 14 years for assault and robbery; commuted to 3 to 10 years.

Edward Ausmacher, sentenced at Milwaukee October 20, 1939 to a term of 1 to 2 years for abandonment and placed on probation; Granted absolute pardon.

Highway Patrolman Hit on Head With Gun as Cars Crash

If Jack Frenz, Outagamie county highway patrolman, ever has occasion to hit someone on the back of the head with a gun, he'll know beforehand how it feels.

Frenz was driving his coupe south on Durkee street at 1 o'clock this afternoon. His car and one driven by Noel Norbert Franzen, 515 N. Clark street, collided at the intersection of Durkee and Washington street.

Frenz said he brought his car to a stop before the collision occurred. At the impact, Frenz's gun which was lying on the ledge behind the seat moved forward rather rapidly. It bounced against Frenz's head, leaving him partially stunned.

Franzen, who was driving east on Washington street at the time of the collision, was not injured.

Ford Agency Changes Hands

Sherry Motors Will Replace Brandt Co. As Appleton Dealers

The Ford franchise of the Aug. Brandt company, Ford dealers for 27 years in Appleton, has been assigned to T. J. Sherry, Fort Wayne, Ind., and his brother, O. A. Sherry, Daveport, Iowa, who succeeded Brandt in the Appleton Ford agency.

The new firm will be known as the Sherry Motors and will do business in the former Brandt building at 107 N. Superior street and the used car lot at 312 W. College avenue.

The new Ford dealers were associated with the Universal Credit company of Detroit, T. J. Sherry as manager at Fort Wayne and O. A. Sherry as manager at Daveport.

Brandt, in announcing the change today, said the Aug. Brandt company will continue in business with the agency for the Ford-Ferguson tractor and farm implements until Jan. 1.

He will retain the College avenue frontage of the used car lot and intends to build a filling station on the site within 30 days, he said. Accounts payable also will remain in the hands of the Aug. Brandt company.

Scattered thundershowers and cool breezes moderated conditions in the middle west that for 13 days until Wednesday night wilted in the most severe heat wave of the summer. The death toll from heat and drownings exceeded 1,000.

Warm temperatures prevailed, however, from the central plains region eastward to the middle Mississippi valley. No relief was in sight in Missouri and Kansas.

Lake breezes gave Chicago another day of pleasant weather and the mercury was not expected to climb above 82 degrees. The forecast was for a shift in winds to southerly this afternoon, bringing in some of the Kansas and Missouri heat. Relief was expected by Sunday night.

Today's maximum in Kansas City was expected to fall five degrees below yesterday's 101. Twelve prostration cases were treated there yesterday and last night, a day's record for the summer.

Light showers occurred last night in north and central Kansas but the hot spell continued unbroken. The wave was in its third week in Wichita, Kas.

Highest and lowest temperatures reported in the nation during the last 24 hours by official weather bureau stations: Phoenix, Ariz., 109; Oakland, Calif., 51, according to the Associated Press.

Nine 2-hour stops will be made in Outagamie county next week by the "Little Blue Classroom on Wheels," Bureau of Maternal and Child Health trailer of the state board of health, according to Miss Marie Klein, county nurse.

The trailer is designed to provide an educational program for parents in rural areas which age not otherwise reached by classes on maternal and child care.

The program will include talking and silent pictures, exhibits of clothing and equipment for infant care, and informal talks by Miss Harriet Baker, state public health nurse. Eighteen adults can be accommodated at each session, and time will be allowed for discussion of parents' problems. The exhibits include one of the 44 incubators recently acquired by the state for prematurely born babies. The trailer sessions are open to mothers, fathers and other interested adults. Fountain Didn't Look Pretty So It Is Torn Down

Yesterday a crew of workmen under William Eggert, superintendent of school janitors, started to tear down the fountain in front of the senior high school building.

The fountain's swan song was sung at a school board meeting last spring when the board decided once and for all that the fountain didn't look pretty and that it should be torn down.

But the WPA (it was built under a WPA project after the school was finished) didn't like that idea and said in effect that "what the WPA builds, stays built."

Anyway, school board workmen are tearing the fountain down with the idea that almost anything in front of the school, but the fountain, would look better.

Excavation for the million-gallon filtered water reservoir has been completed and construction is expected to start soon.

Vocational School Prepares For New Defense Training

Appleton vocational school participation in vocational education of defense workers will be started as soon as sufficient applicants from WPA rolls are available. Herb Heilig, vocational school director announced today. Heilig returned Thursday from a 1-day conference of directors of vocational schools of Fox river valley and Lake Shore cities conducted by a representative of the state department of vocational and adult education.

Defense training projects, for which $15,000,000 was made available July 16, by congress, already have been started in larger cities of the state, but Appleton WPA rolls have not provided enough men to warrant starting the project, Heilig said. Fifty per cent of the men enrolled in the training courses must be from WPA.

Although actual training courses have not started in the Appleton vocational school, the board of directors of the school has authorized cooperation with competent federal agencies in the program, and preliminary preparations for inauguration of the program are being completed, Heilig added.

The defense training, which Heilig said probably will get underway about Sept. 1, will not interfere with the regular vocational school sessions, but special classes with added instructors will be scheduled. Plans call for setting up of special courses for electricians, machinists, welders and auto mechanics.

Men interested in obtaining vocational education for defense should contact the Appleton WPA office, Heilig said.

Find No Foul Play in Shorewood Man's Death

Milwaukee.—William George Hyland, 45, who failed to return to his home in suburban Shorewood after attending a ball game last night was found dead today behind the Shorewood postoffice.

Following an autopsy, the coroner's office reported that death was due to heart disease.

Mrs. Hyland reported her husband missing late last night and a search of the neighborhood was started. She found him at 5:15 a. m. The police said Hyland apparently had taken shelter on the postoffice loading platform from a sudden rainstorm. His head was injured.

Hyland, a resident of Shorewood, was sales manager for the Economy Electric Lantern company. He formerly lived in Madison.

11 Accidents in City Last Month

141 Occurred Since Jan. 1; Public More Prompt in Reporting

There were 11 accidents in the city last month, one of them involving a pedestrian and the other 10 only motor vehicles, Sergeant Carl Radtke of the police department reported today. Personal injuries were suffered in three of the accidents and property damage in seven.

Accidents in July of 1939 numbered 10, according to the sergeant.

There have been 141 city accidents reported to the police department thus far this year, compared with 118 during the corresponding period last year. Since Jan. 1, 44 people have been injured in Appleton and three killed. In the same period last year, two were killed and 30 injured.

A closer check on accidents by the police department and more voluntary reporting by the public is largely responsible for the increase in the number of accidents, Sergeant Radtke said, pointing to the state law which requires that all accidents in which fatalities, personal injuries, or damages of more than $50 occur must be reported to authorities.

The police department held 52 examinations for drivers' licenses last month.

New Seats in Trades School Auditorium

Twenty-one-year-old loose slat seats in the Appleton Vocational school auditorium will be replaced before the opening of the new session with 168 new seats similar to those of the Appleton High school auditorium, according to Herb Heilig, vocational school director.

A feature of the seats in the front of the auditorium will be sliding desks tops which disappear into the back of the seat ahead. General summer renovation work in preparation for the fall session is now underway.

Fined for Operating Car Without License

Harry A. Brenig, Appleton, was fined $5 and costs with an alternative of five days in jail this morning when he pleaded guilty to operating a car without a license before Acting Municipal Judge Fred V. Heinemann. Brenig was arrested in the town of Grand Chute yesterday.

It Is Said ---

Workmen were busy saving trees this morning on the courthouse lawn, trees that have been cut down to make way for the new building.

Mark Catlin, Sr., was standing with a group of men watching the proceedings. "Come on," he said to the man next to him, "let's get in there and show them how it's done."

"Not me," said the fellow. So Catlin walked over and took one end of a saw, relieving a workman who gladly took a recess. Observers said Catlin's technique was really pretty fair.

Safety note: Captain Charles Steidl of the Outagamie county traffic police remarked today that only two accidents have been reported in the county in the last 14 weeks.

The Appleton baseball team may be a bit unsteady these days, but the boys who have the evening shifts over at the fire station aren't missing any games by radio.

"Funny thing," one of the firemen said this morning. "You know, guys who used to growl when we had the Cubs and White Sox games on all the time now are sitting around here as late as they have to in order to hear the Papermakers."

For the first time since it was built in 1900, the public library building has a number on its front door, 121 S. Oneida street. The number was affixed there because of the new income tax office on the second floor. Previously the building was known as "the library" or "city hall building."

The March Is on

Obstructions across the highway will have to be used or the swing to Wilkie will become a stampede.

George White, twice governor of Ohio and Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936, has gone over to Mr. Wilkie because "I hold conscience above consistency, especially after the manner in which the third term nomination was put over." Mr. White was a member of the Ohio delegation to the recent national convention at Chicago which "drafted" Mr. Roosevelt by "acclamation."

New Jersey's former Secretary of State, Joseph F. S. Fitzpatrick, a lifelong Democrat, has publicly abandoned the effort to choke down the throats of the American people the proposition that Mr. Roosevelt is the "one indispensable man" or that as a nation we are so utterly bankrupt of qualifications and bereft of mentality that we have only one fit to lead.

It should be noted that this increasing list of prominent Wilkie Democrats includes those who find it very hard to abandon the party of their lifetime efforts, the party that so often put them in office and showered them with honors. That makes it easier to believe that they are sick at heart at the attack upon American ideals and institutions, and particularly that splendid principle to which our fathers clung for safety relating to the third term and which is now tossed into mothballs as a relic of the shameful and despicable "horse and buggy days."

The Democratic Party in Wisconsin

The possible appearance of the name of Michael F. Kresky for congress on both the Democratic and Progressive tickets at the primaries forcefully turns us again to the practical impossibility as well as the clear unnecessary of three political parties in this state.

Conditions may alter but for the present the Democratic party in this state is like a huge scow broken loose from its moorings, rudderless and without responsible leadership, that has become a menace upon the stream of life.

In Wisconsin the Democratic party is woody from the neck up and is rapidly becoming ossified from the neck down. There are few in positions of authority in the state who dare think or express an opinion without looking anxiously toward the White House for a cue. If the White House is busy they look for a light in the attorney-general's office now that Farley declines to hold the tiller while the captain lays a course for the rocks.

This is all very good for the Republicans in Wisconsin. But is it good for government? Majority rule is essential. It has certain rugged virtues of responsibility in a democracy that must be preserved at all costs or we will slip into the sink-hole in which other democracies have constantly floundered and died.

Progressives and Republicans in Wisconsin would make a fine fight of the election. And their offer of divergent views and principles would be all-sufficient. This may look like a great hardship upon many splendid men and women who have worked faithfully in Democratic ranks but in view of the national situation it is unavoidable. Al Smith, the most practical progressive of national Democratic prominence in going over to Mr. Wilkie diagnosed the disease and advanced the remedy. The President has treated the Wisconsin Democratic leaders as a lot of children to answer the buzzer when he presses it and perform a variety of little errands that redound to his glory and magnificence. He has attempted, and probably effected, a coalition with Mr. LaFollette. Whatever may have actuated the White House the fact remains that Mr. LaFollette has influence with more voters in Wisconsin than the Democratic party.

There will be some, of course, who will want to preserve the corpse, hopeful that it will come to life. But the vast majority should realize that burial and rebirth constitute the only salvation.

Let the requiem play its last sad notes of solemn disappointment. Then we should get away to a good race between two parties ornamented in this state by ability and character and who have, at least, some idea of where they are heading.

Japs Go to Mexico for Oil

Almost immediately after the President made certain orders in respect to the shipment of American petroleum products to Japan Tokyo announced it had come to satisfactory terms with our great friend to the south. It is going to have pipe lines constructed across Mexico so that its oil tankers may pick up what they please and thus frustrate this country in the exercise of the great power which it has over its business and industry.

Mexico would be unable to circumvent our national purpose had she not taken our extensive oil wells, together with the equipment costing many millions.

For American business and industry, wherever located, has recognized a moral embargo as effectively as a legal embargo. When the President asked American corporations to desist in sending articles to Russia they immediately quit although it was a financial hardship upon them to do so and no law required it.

In the New Deal philosophy there are many things cast asid that are debatable but there are few things so utterly wrong as the glamorous but fatal Neighborly Policy.

Mexico not only robs our people of their property but uses that property to arm, equip and strengthen a nation that the White House looks upon as a very formidable enemy.

And Mexico does this in spite of the constant bribes we have been paying her by giving her an inflated price for her silver.

Having gone thus far upon this road the pirates have laid out, how much more should we pay Mexico to do our will? Shall we buy back the oil wells at a big figure? Or in just what manner shall we grovel in the dust?

France to Punish the "Guilty"

The new French minister of the interior declared that France is now about to punish those guilty of responsibility for her lack of preparation and the crime of declaring war in her unprepared state.

The minister's language is stern. It will rouse the living, even some of the dead. He promises that on the day of trial "our dead will be present among the accusers." Such is the beauty of totalitarian government that the dead will no doubt speak through the minister and point black and bony fingers at some poor wretches who stand in the prisoner's dock.

But if it were possible to confute the minister of a totalitarian government, this Frenchman would lose his plea in court even according to his own language. For he continued:

"We are buried under the ruins of a liberal parliamentary, capitalist regime. You have lived on lies. The hour of truth has now sounded."

Here, then, we find the entire nation guilty and therefore subject to punishment. For it is just as criminal to believe obvious lies as it is to pour them forth.

France is merely pursuing the very silly course of looking for a goat as though the smell of the animal in the nation's nostrils would revive it.

It would be like our arresting the President because he gave the country a violently distorted report of the condition of its defenses in that celebrated speech of his where he emphasized so heavily the stuff we had "on order" and slurred over the stuff we had "on hand."

It would be a pity to jail Mr. Roosevelt just because he told a lot of foolish people what they wanted to hear and knew to be untrue.

A New Source of Taxation

Californians can think out more methods for the state to get the money of the individual that even Napoleon's and Roosevelt's assistants, in all their dire need, have been able to concoct.

And it is a Californian, one may rest assured, who now proposes that every person who has a surname more than six letters in length must pay $1 for each excess letter. Of course, you guessed it—the originator has a name just six letters long. And he is carefully shielding his brilliant brain child by entrusting it at Washington to Senators Nye and Lee who might be depended upon to work for a rebate for all those whose names have less than six letters.

If the next generation cannot figure out at least 300 or 400 new systems and methods of taxation and tap sources never heard of before it may have to slow up on its spending, and that would be disastrous.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

I DARE NOT ASK THEE

I dare not ask Thee to incline Thine ear To any trifling worry of my own, For every hour must bring for Thee to hear A mournful prayer, an agonizing moan.

My difficulties are a transient mist, Although they hover darkly in my skies, I think of troubling Thee, but I resist, Feeling Thou art distraught in Paradise.

For Thou art not unmindful of our cares, And must look anxiously at every one Who, at the mercy of the despot, fares Without a home beneath a rocking sun.

Thou who hast pity for our suffering Must need our tenderness, for Thou dost wear The thorns for all mankind. I shall not bring My woes to trouble Thee, but I shall bear

Them proudly. Who am I that I should miss The grief men mastered when the first smoke curled Above a flimsy roof? I must bear this, The common pain of the distracted world.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—It looks as if certain big business groups were using the national defense program as an excuse to get out from under some of the legal difficulties with the Justice department.

At any rate, the National Defense Advisory commission has suddenly stepped in to advise the anti-trust division of the Justice department to be more sympathetic toward the big oil companies which now face their biggest anti-trust battle in years.

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold has been preparing the suit in order to force the big oil companies to separate the production and refining of oil from the selling of oil. He claims to have evidence showing that through this "monopolistic" control, the public is being overcharged $150,000,000 a year on highest gasoline alone.

Arnold was all set to file the suit last week—when the National Defense commission stepped in. While it didn't demand that the action be dropped, it argued very forcefully that such a suit would be a disruptive factor at a time when the government is trying to get industry to make heavy capital outlays for defense purposes.

Taking an active part in this behind the scenes was Blackwell Smith, youthful acting general counsel of the defense commission and one-time general counsel of the NRA. Smith was a militant foe of anti-monopoly laws while working under the Blue Eagle, and even more so during subsequent years as a New York corporation lawyer.

Note—Since Smith returned to Washington, Arnold has discovered that, although an officer of the defense commission, he discussed a private case in which his firm is interested with members of Arnold's staff.

PAYING PATRIOTISM

Meanwhile Arnold is very much on the spot. He has been deluged with demands from members of congress and independent oilmen that he proceed with his anti-trust suit. They got wind of it and want to know why he's stalling. One influential western senator called in person to obtain an explanation.

When Arnold told him about the defense commission's objections, the senator blew up. "You mean to tell me," he shouted, "that we've got to bribe big business to be patriotic? Why should we allow the big oil companies $150,000,000 in unjustified profits in order to get them to cooperate on the national defense program?"

"If they don't want to cooperate without being bribed, let's make an issue of that. The public would like to know about it."

GOVERNMENT TIN BUSINESS

Following recent Merry-Go-Round disclosures on tin, it can now be stated that plans are afoot to set up a government corporation under the RFC to buy tin ore direct from Bolivia for smelting in the United States.

This was necessary to give the Bolivians assurance of a permanent agency to take their ore. They would be reluctant to abandon their former market in England for a market in this country that might wash out at the end of the war.

The Bolivian government will be asked to buy all the tin produced by its private mines, thus establishing a complete government monopoly over sale of the ore. This is necessary to give the United States assurance of a steady flow of tin from Bolivia.

With these two assurances, it will be economically feasible to establish smelting plants in this country, thus put an end to the anomaly of having the world's largest tin user dependent upon foreign countries to haul tin ore across the ocean, smelt it in Liverpool, and haul it back again.

WILLIE'S SPEECH

That acceptance speech Wendell Wilkie is writing is one of the toughest jobs he's ever tackled. It can make him or break him.

Wilkie has got to crack two of the hardest political nuts ever handed a GOP standard bearer: the power issue and foreign policy.

Even under normal conditions the power issue is pure TNT, particularly in the west, which is strong for public power. For Wilkie, with his Wall Street and utility background, the handling of this issue so it doesn't explode in his face is doubly delicate.

Perhaps even more difficult is the question of foreign affairs and its closely related problem of compulsory military service. On the latter, Wilkie has never declared himself and the Republican platform also is silent. He is going to have to clear his own ground—and clear it clean. With a bill before congress and members of his party divided, he will have to give some kind of categorical answer.

Roosevelt has declared for "universal training," although so far he has not expressed a view on the pending bill. But his leaders are for it and it's generally considered an administration measure.

On foreign policy, particularly on aid to the British, the president's record is an open book. And so was Wilkie's until he was nominated. Since that moment not one word has come from him on this all-important topic, though he has talked daily on various other matters.

It's understandable that he would ponder it so carefully. There are certain to be brickbats whatever he says. Not only is the country split on foreign policy, but also his own party. It didn't leak out at the time, but when Wilkie visited Washington early last month, the GOP isolationists, led by Senator Vandenberg, tried to corral the new candidate and give him a big isolationist sales talk; warning him to pipe down on aiding the British. But Wilkie sidestepped the block and they didn't get a chance to put on the pressure.

Meanwhile, Wilkie hasn't given the pro-labor group, who were among his strongest convention backers, any comfort either. But he cannot very well keep up this silence beyond his acceptance speech.

Note—Regardless of what Wilkie says, running-mate Senator Charles McNary is isolationist and pro-public power. He intends to say so in his acceptance speech late this month.

POLITICAL CHAFF

Another party leader in line for a key place in the impending Democratic National committee reorganization is Joe Davies, former Ambassador to Russia and Belgium. An able politician for many acquaintances, Davies is slated for national treasurer to replace Oliver Quayle, close lieutenant of Jim Farley.

Smart Republican National Chairman Joe Martin expects to do a lot of master minding in the forthcoming campaign, but very little public speaking. "People don't want to hear me," he says. "They are interested in the candidates. I'll stick to the background where I belong, doing the organizational work."

Pension czar Dr. Francis Townsend is turning from veteran members of congress for help and leaning on younger men. Two of his chief lieutenants now are Representatives Lee Geyer, liberal California first term, and Robert Secrest, 36-year-old Ohioan.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Government clerks and office workers in all the buildings not air-conditioned are playing the numbers.

The number in most departments is always 94, but in the Department of Agriculture, where Secretary Henry A. Wallace's boys have to be scientific about it, it's 84.

The 94 is just plain old degrees Fahrenheit. The 84 is an index figure described as "effective temperature." And when the gongs or the mercury hits those numbers, about 25,000 or 30,000 government and district clerks are sent home to the beaches, to parks, to air-cooled movies or wherever they want to go to find relief from the heat.

Now don't ask me the formula for "effective temperature." It's something the doctors, the heating and ventilating engineers, and the psychologists have worked out and I'm not any of those things. It has something to do with temperature, humidity and air movements.

It measures the punch in a heat wave. One weather bureau official says it is simply an arbitrary index to human feelings about heat and cold. Thomas H. Urdahl, consulting engineer, calls it an index of comfort.

Humidifying

The point is that the Weather Bureau, public health service and the Bureau, public health service and the Department of Agriculture are agreed that index-figure 84 is the point beyond which people lose their effectiveness. Which is something I'm going to take up with somebody. The other day that point was reached at 2 p. m. and another day about 2:45.

Just because folks around here get ineffective around 94 degrees, I don't want any of you out in the Nebraska hills or down on the Texas prairies to get any idea that we are sissies.

It's because of something they call humidity. That is, in New York and Philadelphia and Chicago, they call it a lot of other things, none repeatable in a family newspaper.

Washington summer weather is a cross between a Turkish bath and a heat wave on the Sahara. The Turkish bath business is likely to start about the time the mercury reaches the middle 80's and from there on the combination really hits a lick. By the time the thermometer reaches the middle 90's, heat prostrations average 20 to 30 a day. A pal of mine who feels the same way I do about it calls it humidifying.

Cool Off in New York

People in New York City go to the mountains or the beaches to get away from the heat, but people here go to New York City to get away from Washington.

As far as I can see, the capital's summer climate has only one benefit. It does cut down on one's smoking. It gets so it takes a lot of much energy to reach for a cigaret. So now you can see why government officials worry about things like "effective temperature" and why the boys and girls in the government service spend a lot of time these days watching the numbers.

If congress stays on the job this summer and the summer finishes as it stated, I'd be in favor of giving the ins a vote of confidence. I'll take a couple of winters at those salaries for them to recuperate.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

It sort of looks like our lawmakers down in Washington were for the best army a man can send a boy to.

Senators who are fellows between 45 and 75 are being pretty careful to see that nobody over 31 gets registered for military service, even in a pinch. Middle-aged, creaky and half-asleep, some of these fellows just say, "You can't scare us."

Despite the lessons of European disaster, political bungling and slow motion, the senate committee changed the registration bill to take in only young men between 21 and 31 instead of between 18 and 64, and I figure Hitler enjoyed the news.

Secretary Stimson pleaded with the lawmakers to act like "prudent trustees" of their country's safety, but they are acting a lot more like careless pallbearers. What those politicians want is an army that will inconvenience the fewest number of people.

One senator actually asked, "Why wouldn't it be better to put on a glamorous recruiting campaign for the regular army?" That gives you an idea of the senatorial mind. It would draw the boys in by pretty pictures of bamboo trees and coral isles, supplemented by flowery travel talks.

Church Missed Bus—So It Got One

Waynoka, Okla.—(The Rev. S. B. Nichols of the First Baptist church has put the rural school bus idea to good advantage in boosting Sunday school attendance.

"If it works for schools why won't it work for churches, too?" he asked when he learned that persons living near Waynoka wanted to attend church but had no transportation.

So the church acquired an old school bus and now it covers a 16-mile route every Sunday morning.

I Want to be Strong—

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Not to be overlooked as a factor in the Wisconsin political campaigns this year is the enforced absence from their constituencies of Wisconsin congressmen who are up for re-election this year.

With all signs pointing toward an all-summer session for congress, some of Wisconsin's representatives privately feel themselves at a distinct disadvantage in the contest with many rivals for their seats in the national capital.

Congressman Joshua L. Johns, Republican incumbent in the Eighth district who has a couple of Republicans anxious to deprive him of the party nomination, recently put out a statement saying that he hoped his services in Washington in the present emergency would be appreciated by his constituents in lieu of a primary campaign.

Some of the others, however, are not going to be content with such appeals.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, for example, who faces what will inevitably become the most crucial test in a life-time of politics in the fall election, is depending on publicity efforts by his home-state organization to replace the campaigning which he has been forced to forego.

A group of his Madison friends recently published an attractive, lushly illustrated and printed booklet detailing his achievements.

Moreover, the reorganized Progressive party newspaper is now purely a LaFollette organ, with the speeches and editorials of the LaFollette family crammed its pages. It is also being circulated throughout the state as a campaign medium.

Probably the most novel publicity effort in LaFollette's behalf, however, will shortly be disclosed when a phonograph records dramatizing his public career in March of Time fashion will be broadcast over a state-wide radio network. The records are now being made in Madison.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

A constant source of amazement of capital observers in the last weeks has been the deluge of candidacies for office on the Republican ticket.

Even in districts which have been historically Progressive, there are now contests on the Republican ticket.

One hard-shell Republican worker from what has been an arch-Progressive locality commented the other day as he filed papers for his candidacy:

"We used to be unable to beg or borrow a candidate for congress on the Republican ticket; now we have to fight to discourage them from running." The statement came from a Tenth district resident who pointed to the unprecedented spectacle of six Republican congressional candidates in a district which went safely Progressive even in the 1938 Republican landslide.

POT-POURRI
Milwaukee District Attorney Herbert Steffes' decision to leave the Progressive party in favor of the Republicans was not a secret. He had confided his plans to lawyer friends several months ago.

Completely unnoticed by the state press went Phil LaFollette's first public speech about the Heil administration at Delevan last week. For two years LaFollette has steadily declined to allow Madison newspapers to quote him on Heil or the Heil policies. Several Dane county Democrats, who haven't the slightest hope of winning, are becoming candidates for office in order to assist in ousting some of the party's leaders at the platform con-

Personal Health Talks

WE HAVE BECOME SOFT

The senile Marshal Petain surrendering France assigned as a fundamental reason for the failure of French men to prevail against German machines the fact that since the first World war the French people had indulged in too much ease and pleasure, implying that Frenchmen had gone soft. Perhaps the great military strategists of France had dozed a bit over their 1914 military science while the youthful experts of Germany were getting their 1940 war machine tuned up. It is hard to teach an old dog new tricks.

There has been considerable comment in this country concerning the "softness" of our young men. This commentator fears they have gone soft and are not physically fit for military service, and that one reason that our young men were never quite so fit physically as they are today.

My own impression is that men today are practically as fit as were our men when we entered the World war I. And a majority of the men at that time, if you remember, were physically unfit, that is to say, not defective but just soft, flabby, malnourished, from bad habits, bad hygiene or ways of living. This softness was remedied by six months of the wholesome, regulated, disciplined life in training camp. Some millions of youths who went to camp soft and heading for an early breakdown in health and efficiency finished the course of schooling in first class condition to carry on as men in the service of their country in war or peace.

For a while after World War I there was some agitation for better education in the common schools, better physical education, and out of the agitation grew at least some beginnings in that direction. But the movement bogged down during the boom that followed the war and school children today receive little if any better physical education than school children received a generation ago.

The recent proposal of a term of compulsory military training for all able bodied men meets with the hearty approval of those interested in physical health. Such instruction would be of inestimable benefit to every man fortunate enough to receive it, and of course, to the welfare of the country, whether our immediate future involves war or peace.

A great many young men who went from white collar jobs into the training camps in 1917 gained ten or twelve pounds in weight while their body measurements or displacement were reduced—due to development of muscle and burning off superfluous fat—muscle tissue being heavy, fat tissue light.

The general health condition of the people today is unquestionably better than it has ever been before. Whatever softening of the fibre of the people there may be evident today can be corrected by the physical education and discipline of a term of military training.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Vitamin Treatment of Arthritis
What is the present opinion of physicians in general concerning treatment of arthritis with large amounts of Vitamin D? (C. A. J.)

Ans.—It seems to be remarkably helpful in some cases, moderately so in others, without definite value in others. How to determine which type of arthritis will respond to high potency Vitamin D treatment, I do not know. It can do no harm in any case of chronic arthritis to try the treatment for six weeks—four capsules daily each capsule containing 50,000 units. In some cases increasing the daily intake to 300,000 units may bring improvement after a month or six weeks; or 200,000 units, made up of legislative and state office candidates, after the primary election.

units daily has failed to bring improvement.

Heat and Salt

Should a person who exercises outdoors in hot weather take an extra ration of salt? If so, for just what purpose and how much salt and in what way? (H. C. W.)

Ans.—A large amount of salt is excreted in the sweat. Therefore one who sweats profusely, even when exposed to extreme heat and dry air that evaporates the sweat so fast one is scarcely conscious of sweating, should take a good pinch of salt with each drink of water. This prevents heat cramps, heat exhaustion and water intoxication. Five or ten grains of salt with every good drink of water. Taking salt along with the water or other beverage is more refreshing in very hot weather or when working or playing hard in any circumstance, than is water or beverage without salt.

Anilin Dyes

"Is continual contact with anilin dye harmful?" (Mrs. G. R.)
Ans.—No. The finished colors are harmless. It is only in the chemical manufacture of anilin dyes that harmful effects may occur—chiefly skin lesions, less commonly systemic poisoning by inhalation of fumes.

Roosevelt for Draft to Build Strong Defense

The nation hasn't got, but is beginning to get.

He said that William S. Knudsen, in charge of defense plans for industrial production, told him the other day that a lot of companies were proceeding with $1,800,000,000 worth of orders for all kinds of materials and machinery without waiting for actual contracts.

The United States, he declared, had learned from the present war that nations without trained man power were in a bad way.

The way the chief executive put it was this:

In 1917 this country built an army of 4,000,000 men but they did not go into action until 13 months later. Meanwhile no shot was fired against this country over here, but that was just a bit of sheer luck and would never happen again in this nation's history.

In other words, the United States now must have a trained army beforehand, consisting of fighting men, supply men, mechanics and factory workers. All would require training he said, whether they were in uniform or not.

By training men in advance for defense, a nation saves human lives. An untrained army and navy mean casualties much higher than in the case of trained man-power, and fewer cases of disease result from having a trained organization.

A nation can not get a sufficiently trained force of military and non-military men by just passing an act of congress when war breaks out or by having a purely voluntary system. Therefore compulsory conscription is the most efficient way to handle the problem.

Mr. Roosevelt said at the outset, after the reporter sounded him out on reports that he was cool to conscription, that he was thinking the other day that he was being damned if he did and damned if he didn't. He said he was bound to be criticized whatever he did and if he saw a ready-made bill for congress to pass the president was ordering congress to do something.

Old man dictator, he said, would be the definition in some stories. Recalling the depression crisis of 1933, he said he did send to congress ready-made bills which were put through without hearings, but this was only to save time in the emergency. He got terribly panned for this, he added. Later, in 1934, the practice was discarded.

Then, he continued, when congressional committees asked him to submit tentative drafts of bills, newspapermen invented the term "must" legislation and he got panned on that.

There never had been any "must" legislation, he said. Further explaining why he had not spoken before today on conscription, the chief executive said one editorial today urged congress to do something quickly, while another asked, why the rush?

Peace Terms Offered, Refused In World War 25 Years Ago

BY VIOLA BELLERMANN

The first anniversary of the World war early in August, 1925, found Europe praying for an early end of the great struggle but determined to continue the fighting "to a victorious end."

As it did in the summer of 1940, Germany 25 years ago proposed peace on its terms, and the British press responded angrily, as it did this year, that the English would fight to the finish and make peace only on their own terms.

Warsaw, which the Russians had begun to evacuate in July, was taken by the Germans Aug. 5, 1915. Its capture was hailed in Berlin as the greatest single achievement of the Germans in the war. It meant that the Russians would be unable to start another offensive very soon, and that Germany was in a position to protect the eastern front with a minimum expenditure of men. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who was given most of the credit for the remarkable showing of the Germans in the east, was Germany's hero.

In London it was conceded that the fall of Warsaw would have a tremendous effect upon the war and the fighting during the coming six months.

"The capture of the Polish capital will release for the Kaiser at least 1,000,000 soldiers, who no doubt will be used in the campaign in the west," the British admitted sadly. "It is believed here the cry of 'On to Paris' will go forth in a day or two. It will be no surprise to some to see the Kaiser's forces in Calais in the near future unless the Dardanelles can be forced so that the Russians may soon again be supplied with ammunition and start a new and effective offensive in the east."

Dardanelles Defended
But forcing the Dardanelles was no easy task. A large allied fleet had been at the Turkish-held Dardanelles for months and had scarcely scratched its defenses.

It was generally agreed that if the allies could capture the strait it would be one of the most important victories of the war. Russia had millions of men trained and ready to fight, but waiting for guns, shells and other munitions from England, France and America. These munitions could be brought in with the necessary speed and in the necessary quantities only through the Dardanelles.

A terse dispatch from Petrograd said that the duma had demanded the execution of those responsible for the shortage of munitions in Russia. Indications were that Bulgaria might be the next to plunge into the war. A spokesman for that country said that she would send her armies marching against Constantinople in 24 hours if Serbia would cede Macedonia to her.

The coast of England was being raided 25 years ago as it is now by German aircraft. In the raid on Aug. 10 the death list numbered 13, while many more were reported injured. One of the German zeppelins was brought down and the crew captured.

A strong contingent of American exporters, most of the cotton growers and meat packers, asked President Wilson for an ultimatum or a message forcible enough to amount practically to one in answer to England's refusal to a modification of her order in council, by which she held American ships bound for even neutral European ports in British harbors.

Jail Bars Broken, But No One Cares

They were breaking down the bars of the Outagamie county jail today, but there weren't any screaming sirens to indicate that authorities were chasing escaped prisoners.

In fact, there were even spectators watching casually as the jail was being broken wide open and they did nothing about it except make remarks on how much easier it is to tear something down than to build it up.

The jail is being knocked to pieces to make way for the new courthouse and the building was hardly recognizable this morning, what with the top floor looking like it had been the landing place for a bomb.

Seated spectators who have been around since the first brick was kicked out of place say that there are plenty of salvage crews ready to accept anything that might be of use. In the evening people come with coaster wagons to haul away old boards for firewood.

last night. Some conjectured that Adolf Hitler may be planning the slow war of blockade instead of the lightning tactics he has used before.

One Welsh town also was attacked from the air last night. About half a dozen bombs fell, causing slight damage.

Influence of the German gestapo in the Japanese home office, which supervises police operations, was charged by British sources as it was disclosed that two more British subjects had been arrested in Japan. In all, 15 prominent Britons have been taken into custody since last Saturday.

Whether Germany chooses the fast war of blitzkrieg or the slow war of attrition, British leaders declared, the nation is ready.

Geneva.—(7)—The German army of occupation in France has ordered closing of the Swiss-French border from Geneva to Basel, effective Aug. 4.

Many observers viewed this as a new indication that the Germans are sealing all possible channels through which news of preparations for the invasion of Britain might reach the outside world.

Berlin.—(7)—The sinking of an enemy submarine by a German U-boat which on two trips thus accounted for 12 armed merchant ships totaling 72,000 tons, the British destroyer Whirlwind and a submarine, was reported by the German high command today.

The submarine was commanded by Lieut. Capt. Wilhelm Rollmann. In addition the air force bombarded a number of small convoys and ships off the Humber on Britain's east coast, in St. George channel and off Yarmouth, the high command said.

As a result of these attacks a merchant ship was sunk, and two other merchant ships, a tanker and a minesweeper were damaged.

Beauty and You

AVOIDS SUNBURN—This young lassie takes great pride in anointing skin with a tested sunproof cream which she carries down to the sea in a fat tube. No sunburn or toughened skin for this young beauty!

Modern mothers are instructed by leading pediatricians that children should get sun very early in life. Gone are the old-fashioned swaddling clothes which kept air and sun from a baby's body. Now a baby is gradually exposed to the sun's rays until he can lie nude beneath them for as long as an hour, providing his skin has been conditioned and the sun is not too hot.

These sun baths are healthful, and every child should have them providing the necessary precautions are taken. Your physician will advise you how soon after birth your child may safely be exposed to the sun for a few minutes. Each week you may increase the time a bit, and from the very first sun bath his tender, young skin must be carefully anointed with a protective cream or oil.

Olive oil is a good conditioner for new babies, but as the child grows older into his second year, you will discover that one of the prepared sun creams or oils serve more efficiently. But select one carefully, for some of the commercial sunburn preventatives are too strong for young skins.

After Tanning
A child should never be allowed to play in the sun for long in skimpy play suit with skin exposed, without having had his skin adequately lubricated even after he has tanned. You don't want your child to grow up with a tough, discolored skin, so prevent that. Keep it well anointed throughout the sunny days and as soon as he is old enough to learn, teach him to apply the protective before he runs out to play.

If a Child Burns
If your child burns from the least bit of sun, or if he has stayed out under it too long, do not use water to wash him. Sponge him with milk. For milk creates a lactic acid that softens and soothes when it touches the skin. A butter milk bath can't be beaten for it not only allays irritation, but it soothes and whitens the skin. Use it to wash your tiny tots whenever wind or sun has made their skin tender to the touch.

Another precaution mothers should take is to soften hard water for a child's bath, if they live in a hard-water district. The simplest way to do this is to add borax to the bath water. A pinch at a time until you feel the water soften. Some mothers catch rain water in which to bathe their young offspring and that is a good thing indeed, for rain water is soft and beautifies the skin.

Miss Lindsay will advise mothers in the selection of cosmetic aids for children if they will address her in care of the Post-Crescent and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

WEDDING IN CHURCH

A letter from a clergyman says in part: "I can hardly believe that the congregation of an impoverished minister can expect that he and his wife send a present every time a wedding takes place in his church. I am such a minister, and my wife is worried every time I officiate at a wedding about not doing the right thing. She and I both will be more comfortable if you will tell us what to do."

In answer to this, let me say very firmly that in my opinion it would be financially impossible that a clergyman and his wife send a present to the daughter of the Joneses, let us say, in whose house he is constantly made welcome and where he and his wife are both very much at home. And of course it would not do to send a present to Margaret Greene at whose wedding he is also going to officiate. The rule, therefore, is that only to members of his own family, or to friends outside of his own parish, may he properly send a wedding present.

Walk in or Ring at a Tourist House?
Dear Mrs. Post: If the door is ajar or unlocked, may an inquiring traveler walk in at a house that advertises rooms for tourists?

Answer: After you have taken a room in the house, you of course go in and out without ringing the bell, provided the door is kept unlocked. But before this, you must ring the bell and wait for some one to answer the door. Aside from this being the polite way to behave, you would probably find yourself in an empty hall with no way to attract any one's attention except to go out of the front door again, and ring the bell!

A Present That Is a Mystery
Dear Mrs. Post: I sent a present several weeks ago to a friend in whose house I often stay. And I forgot to leave a card at the store. Of course I haven't had any message from the friend, and she probably doesn't realize that she could find out who sent it by telephoning the store. I feel rather embarrassed to let her know now that I sent it, because it might suggest that I thought she should have known

Skill, Luck Combined to Reach Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The best thing that can be said about overbidding is that it often induces masterful exhibitions of play. In today's hand, North and South should not have been in a slam contract, but there they were, and it was up to South to pull the chestnuts out of the fire. That he succeeded was due to a happy combination of skill and good luck. South, dealer.

The bidding:

There was nothing timid about North's bidding. Admittedly, his hand was not too easy to bid and he was more or less on the spot from the very first. With distribution of 5-5-2-1, he as naturally loath to answer the one spade opening with one no trump, but that course would have been safer than his actual choice of two diamonds, which made South believe he would find a respectable diamond suit opposite him. North's three spade bid was pretty much forced, as a mere preference between spades and clubs, but he had a chance to "get out" when South conservatively invited a slam with his five spade bid. North should have declined this invitation, by passing. True, he would thereby have forfeited the slam bonus actually earned, but as I have said, South not only had to use exceptional skill, but also had to get perfect breaks to fulfill said slam.

West opened the deuce of hearts, the first break for declarer. The latter ruffed, entered dummy with the club king, and ruffed a second heart. The club six was ruffed with the spade six, and a third heart ruff brought declarer nearer to the establishment of a heart. Now came the crucial play of the hand, and the one which, I fear, would be muffed by the great majority of players. South deliberately ruffed his good club queen, then reduced himself to the ace-king of trumps by ruffing a fourth heart. He cashed the ace and king of spades, then finessed the diamond queen thru West. The latter covered and the diamond ace won. Now dummy's established heart was played, and East could ruff or discard, at his pleasure. In either event, South would, of course, discard his diamond six. Actually, East chose to use his high trump on this trick, but then he had to concede the fulfilling tricks to South, who had the high cards in diamonds and clubs. My criticism of North's slam bid is based on the fact that any slight change in the opposing distribution (even aside from the position of the diamond king) would have been fatal. But one thing is sure: North is to be congratulated for having picked a partner who could capitalize his good fortune.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is Jonah's twin sister, alive in this 20th century! Though she flees, a psychological tempest always catches up with her. And as Jonah was finally thrown into the sea to appease God, so she feels she will be thrown off her balance mentally and engulfed by the monster, insanity.

CASE R-135: Helen K., aged 33, is the mother of two little boys.

"I'm at the point where my nerves tingle like a twanged violin string," she said.

"I'm scared to death that I'll have a nervous breakdown that will lead to insanity. The most awful thoughts come to my mind, Dr. Crane."

"I'm afraid I will harm my children and do away with myself. But I have so much to live for that I don't want any such thing to happen."

"About four years ago I had another attack of this foolishness after a serious illness. I am active in church and civic organizations so that I hardly have time to think, but I am haunted with fear."

"When I finally relax at night, I have nightmares of some impending doom, and awaken so exhausted I am wobbly all day. Dr. Crane, what will help me overcome this terrible fear?"

DIAGNOSIS:

To one who hadn't been reading this psychology column regularly, Helen's case might sound perfectly baffling.

"It's all Greek to me," such a person might exclaim.

But you who have followed this column for a long time, can readily perceive that Helen is simply trying to avoid facing some critical problem which terrifies her.

Like Jonah who fled to escape the task of denouncing the city of Nineveh, and then was caught up in the terrific storm at sea, so Helen is engulfed in an emotional tempest as she tries to flee from facing her problem.

Helen's Secret Dilemma

The most frequent type of these violent emotional conflicts pertains to right and wrong. It is usually in the sexual sphere.

And such was true in Helen's case. During her early marriage she had quarreled often and bitterly with her husband. They failed to join my COMPLIMENT CLUB, but belittled and criticized each other.

Then she fell in love with another man, and was unfaithful to her husband. Meanwhile, she joined the COMPLIMENT CLUB and found that her husband blossomed out into a most wonderful person under the stimulation of her praise and appreciation.

So she found herself falling in love with her husband again. But the other affair also dragged along. Her conscience bothered her.

Then she had her serious illness and came near death. That made her think of God and precipitated her previous attack of this psychological conflict, which she describes as nearly a complete nervous breakdown.

Jonah's Sister
Helen is really a twin sister to Jonah in the Biblical story. Turn where she may, she cannot escape. Since she recovered her physical health following her former serious illness, she fears that God will strike via insanity the next time.

Previously, I have informed you that the average citizen looks on insanity as a common form of divine punishment. Even the early Hebrews had this conception, as illustrated in the story of Nebuchadnezzar, the Chaldean King, who was stricken insane by divine intent and ate grass in the fields thereafter.

Even people who never heard of that Biblical episode, still have absorbed the popular idea that insanity is punishment by God for some serious sin. Helen must settle her conflict by facing the issue, and closing her affair with the other man.

"Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts."

Outdoor Exercise Helps Youngsters' Appetites

BY ANGELO PATRI

From my office window in the city I can look into the windows of a big apartment house. Every day I see a mother struggling with a sturdy little boy of four or so to get him to eat his meals.

She begins about seven o'clock. At that time she appears with the little boy, dressed in his pajamas. She seats him on the window sill that is on the fire escape so that he can have the morning air. Then she offers him a glass of orange juice. He turns his head away. She talks to him, turns his head toward her, presses the glass to his lips. He struggles away and for the better part of an hour she works to get some of the orange juice down his throat. It is spilled on his clothes, the fire escape, the window sill and walls. Sometimes, not often, she loses patience and gives him a slap. He howls, and father comes and he says a few ineffectual words, and the program continues.

Life on the Farm
Whenever we can escape from the city we go to the farm. We meet our neighbors in the village or on the road and get to know them and their ways more intimately than we know those of our closest neighbors in the city. I scraped acquaintance with a little four-year-old boy whose father is a farmer and whose mother is a nurse. Granny, a real granny who is wise and kind and very healthy, manages the house and the boy.

I happened along one morning just as John was about to have breakfast. Granny had set his little table and he was pulling up his chair when I appeared. "Ooo, Gran, orange juice. Where'd we get it?" "Your mother brought in six oranges last night so we all had some this morning. Good, isn't it?" "I'll say so," said John, smacking his lips and setting the empty glass down. I never saw orange juice go so swiftly to its appointed place in my life. Now there was a bowl of cereal, and while Granny went to get me the milk I had come for that cereal disappeared, followed by whole wheat crackers, a soft-boiled egg and two glasses of milk, taken in sips between chews. John was doing a good job, methodically, and with great pleasure.

Lots of Exercise
"There," said he when the last crumb and the last drop had gone their way, "I gotta get to work."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Parents Often Guilty For Children's Crimes

BY DOROTHY DIX

The other day the newspapers contained the tragic story of a mother who committed suicide when her three sons, one 11, one 13 and one 15 years old, were arrested for breaking into homes and robbing them, rifling parked automobiles and performing numerous other acts of vandalism. The sentimentalists will cry, "Poor Mother! How terrible! She must have been driven insane by her children's conduct." And I, too, cry, "Poor Mother! How terrible!" But I do not wonder that she went mad and killed herself when she saw her little boys, their baby hands already steeped in crime, led off to jail. I marvel that any mother can look upon the wrecks of her children's lives, and know that she is largely responsible for the disasters that have befallen them, and keep her sanity and live. For, except in abnormal cases, children are what their mothers make them and grow into the kind of women and men their mothers fashion them into. Every child, of course, has its individual personality, but it is Mother who forms its character, who sets its ideals, who determines its mores and establishes its habits, and who makes it an ornament to the human race or, if the hand of the potter shakes, turns out a weakling or a criminal.

It is the custom always to pity the mother of criminals and shed barrels of tears over those whose sons and daughters have bowed their heads in shame, but, in reality, we should blame the mothers who made their children what they are, and who are far more responsible for their sins than they are themselves.

For who are the murderers except the men and women who, as children, were never taught any self-control, who were permitted to strike any one with whom they were angry and who in passion killed when they were grown?

Who are the drunkards except those who were never made to control their appetites when they were children? Who are the thieves except the grown-up men and women who were permitted to swipe apples off of fruit stands and take other children's toys away from them, and who grew up believing that they had a right to anything they could grab?

And who are the failures except the men and women whose mothers never inculcated in them any habits of industry or stick-at-iveness, or held them to any task until they finished it? Aren't they the cowards and the quitters?

Who are the people who can never hold a job because they can't get along with others except whose mothers never taught them to give and take and play fair with other children?

Who are those who fill the divorce courts except the selfish, pampered, spoiled boys and girls whose mothers have totally unfitted them for marriage by their rearing?

You know the answers to these questions. Everybody knows that no miracle ever happens that prevents the eternal law of nature "as ye sow, so shall ye reap" from working out to its logical end.

Everybody knows that this unfortunate mother of whom we have been speaking would not have been driven to kill herself through remorse and shame because her sons were vandals and thieves if she had taught them to respect other people's property and to do without what they wanted until they could get it honestly.

Yet we see other mothers, following in her footsteps, deluding themselves with the belief that you can bring up a child to be a hoodlum and it will turn into a noble lady or gentleman when it is grown.

And the pitiful thing about it all is that these women are so often good mothers, mothers who love their children but are too weak, too lazy, too fond, too busy with society or clubs to give time to the hard and strenuous job of rearing their girls and boys properly and fighting with self-willed youngsters.

Being a mother is a hard undertaking. No one will deny that. It calls for brain and brawn and backbone and everything a woman has, but if she turns out a good job she gets the highest reward on earth.

A stubborn, defiant expression wiped the usual bland look from his face. "Jan, you must be either blind or stupid! What I'm trying to tell you is the whole thing is a mistake. I thought I wanted sophistication and I've found out I don't. All the time I really wanted someone sweet and wholesome and good-like you. I'm still in love with you, Jan. This is just infatuation. Will you give me a chance? I'll divorce Rose and start over again."

"Not with me, you won't!" she snapped. "You're completely despicable, Johnny. Don't bother coming here again." She turned and ran to the kitchen, enormously relieved when he did not follow. Yet, upset as she was, she would have been much more so if she had listened in on the conversation between Rose and Lance upstairs.

"So that's how it happened," Rose finished, duplicating her husband's story, but with more finesse, to Lance. She sat on the arm of his chair, a forlorn siren turned out in a blue flannel sack suit with a gay silk scarf tied over her black hair. Her gorgeous hazel eyes brooded with resentment. She raged inwardly because all of her well-laid plans had misfired. Johnny effectively cut her off from opportunity. Too, she had been irked and piqued by Lance's calm acceptance of her marriage. She wanted admiration and consolation. Her vanity demanded it. So, thoughtlessly, selfishly, she again sought to awaken a flame of desire in Lance.

"I'm just sick about the whole mess, Lance, and I don't know quite where to turn or what to do. I thought you might advise me."

"You might be wrong. Anyhow, you're speaking of your wife and I don't like your attitude."

Chapter 32
Goodbye To Sea Tide

Johnny ran a nervous hand over his sleep hair. "Oh, we'll make out all right, Rose and me. I guess we're two of a kind, and she'll be a big help to me when I get my own band and my own club, if I ever do. But what worries me is she don't get alimony any more and she don't make an awful lot at the Club and already she's stewing around about clothes. Honest, Jan, I'm afraid I'll never make enough money to keep her satisfied."

"Then why did they marry you?" Jan demanded with asperity, annoyed and embarrassed at Johnny's confidences.

His answer was blunt enough. "We were both a little tight. Oh," he added hastily, seeing the shock in her eyes, "we were far from drunk, but we wouldn't have done it, at least not then, if we hadn't had several cocktails."

"If that is true," Jan said angrily, "you're pretty much of a cad to admit it to anybody!"

"There you go again with your Victorian, or whatever you call it, line," he accused. "Oh, I'm crazy about her, all right, but I know darned well she'll never stick by me."

"You might be wrong. Anyhow, you're speaking of your wife and I don't like your attitude."

Hoping And Praying
He said heavily, resenting the fact that she could still move him, sway his emotions. "There isn't anything I could say to you now, Rose. I'm leaving for New York tomorrow for a consultation with Doctor Murray. If he can do anything about these legs of mine I'll be flying again, and if I fly again I'll have plenty of money. If he can't do anything, well—"

"Then I'll be hoping and praying for you," she whispered, putting her soft, powdered cheek against his. "I cared for you so much, Lance, but I couldn't see any way out for either of us. And Jan insisted I upset you. She thought I should stay away from you. That's why I changed, why I tried to make you believe I was hard and greedy and grasping. I'm not—really. I want what most women want and what I've never had a chance to have: a husband I love, a home and children. Johnny is just a boy who's in love with his music and himself. It won't work out, Lance, it can't!"

He felt his defenses crumbling. She was lovely, exotic, exciting. The perfume from her hair intoxicated him: the nearness of her slim self incited him to dream of a future wherein he would again master space and have a beautiful woman for his wife.

He lifted his thin face and kissed her lips hungrily. "I love you," he

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

For a bit of springtime landscape in early fall, plant Colchicum. It is probable that when you go to buy them under this name, they may not be obtainable, since most dealers, other than the specialists, prefer to call these plants meadow saffron. You might find them incorrectly called autumn crocus, since they bear a striking resemblance to the crocus of spring. Incidentally, the crocus is not in the same family with the saffrons despite the connection in the minds of gardeners.

Meadow saffron should be planted at least two inches under the soil, the corms resting on a cushion of sand. Rapid planting is accomplished by pushing a dibber into the soil to a depth of four or five inches, rounding out a cone shaped depression. Place a small quantity of sand in this depression and on top of it, rest the meadow saffron corm, which you may prefer to call a bulb. Then fill up the depression with good garden loam free of manure. Small quantities of complete fertilizer may be scattered on the loose top soil and raked in.

Several weeks after the corms have been planted, spindly stems will emerge from the soil. These will be topped with beautiful flowers. No foliage whatever will appear this fall. Next spring, however, a sizeable amount of leaves will develop. They will die before hot summer weather arrives. Towards the end of August the spindly stems will again emerge, and will again be topped with flowers. Particularly, Colchicum do not bear foliage and flowers at the same and the same time.

said in a low, tortured voice. "I thought I'd recovered from you, but I haven't!"

Neither of them heard the door open, then close again, but Norma had seen and heard enough to hurry her to her room white-faced and stricken.

"You fool," she said. "You poor precious, idiotic fool!"

Jerking a tissue from a drawer she scrubbed at her face, removing lipstick and rouge and most of the powder. With a stiff hairbrush she straightened out the waves in her hair and pinned it into a severe roll, took off her bright summer clothes and donned her sensible tweeds, added the finishing touch of glasses.

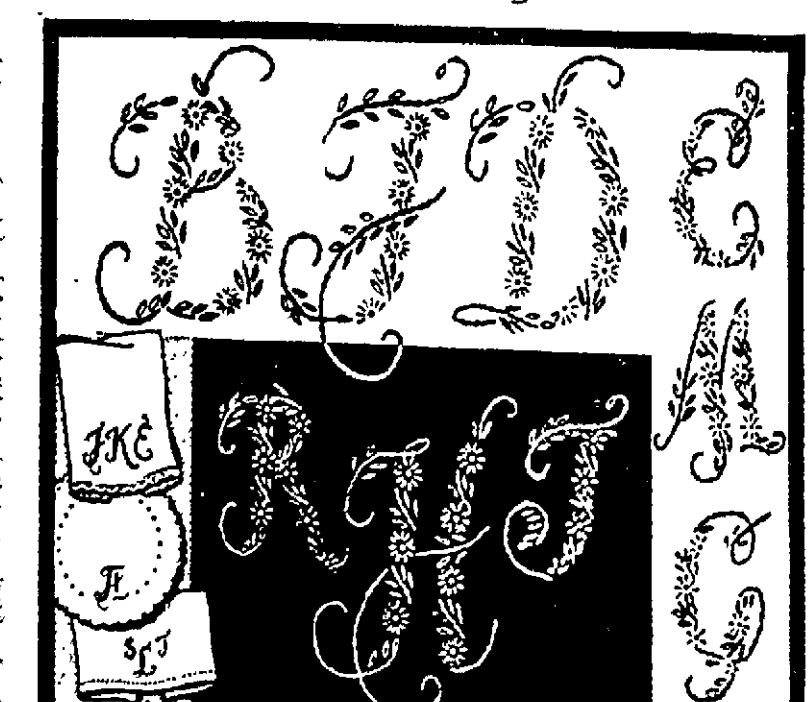

To Jan's surprised inquiry, she stated levelly: "I'm getting back into my schoolteacher role, Jan. My school opens in two weeks, you know."

"But I thought you were going to New York with Lance and me!" Jan protested, bewildered.

Norma, by determined effort, kept her voice calm. "It might mean losing my job here and having to wait until next semester for another school somewhere if I left now. No, Jan, I'll stay on here until you

Lawrence Hits Attack Against Oil Companies

New Deal Action Is Disrupting National Defense Coordination

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The national defense program is bogging down primarily because business and industry are unable to figure on government contracts without taking risks that seem prohibitive. The question of building new plants—that is, how the depreciation problem shall be handled—is still unsolved.

But more demoralizing than anything else is the work of the anti-trust division of the department of justice which is about to launch a most sweeping attack on the entire oil industry. Everybody is agreed that fuel is the most important commodity in a defense program and that every producing and distributing company should be kept at the highest state of efficiency, but at this crucial moment in the industrial life of the nation, the department of justice has made plans to change the entire set-up in an industry which is second only to the railroads in the amount of capital invested.

It is easy enough to prove, of course, that a civil action in the courts will not disturb the supply of gasoline to market right away, but it is not this interference which will cause embarrassment. It is the fact that the major companies are not going to be able to do any planning of new resources and new facilities when they do not know what capital structure is to be permitted hereafter or how new capital can be raised under a plan that calls for disintegration.

The general report here is that the department intends to ask the courts to separate producers from distributors and pipe-line companies from oil producers. The fact that the consumer gets his gasoline cheaper than ever before despite taxes and the fact also that even with integrated companies the average return on net investment for the oil industry is in the neighborhood of only 4 per cent does not seem to dissuade the department of justice experimentalists from invading perhaps the most efficiently managed and operated industry in the whole country.

Retards Defense Plans
Some weeks ago it was asserted that business men would hesitate to do business with the government wherever cooperation between competitors was essential for national defense because the department of justice had filed prosecutions against men who, under the impetus of government suggestion, had collaborated.

Today the discussion here is how to reassure business that it will not run afoul of the anti-trust laws if it does what such institutions as the council of national defense asks them to do. All sorts of plans for the issuance of certificates of immunity have been suggested, but the fact remains that nobody can protect the business men against unwarranted prosecution except congress by specific resolution.

It would be a simple matter for congress to pass a resolution suspending the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law during the emergency period or for one year. It happened during the life of the NRA and the country didn't suffer. The federal trade commission could continue to take care of unfair competition.

What seems to be most difficult is what to do with an anti-trust division which has received a $2,000,000 appropriation and seems to feel it must justify that appropriation by wrecking the capital structures of nearly every important major industry. The department has put its claws into the oil, milk and tobacco industries respectively and has plans for some of the others. A policy has been adopted which professes to be in the interest of the consumer, yet nearly every plan for breaking down big companies into smaller units would seem to involve the payment by the consumer of heavy tribute to middlemen and to companies that must arise to take care of services hitherto performed by integrated companies. Carried to its logical conclusion, the policy of the department of justice implies that farmers must not set up selling stands on the roadside, but must stick to production alone and that the producer of a commodity can have no part in marketing it. In the end the consumer pays a higher toll for such inefficiency in distribution.

The New Deal administration has not played fair with industry. For the last seven years it has had ample opportunity to set forth a constructive policy with respect to the anti-trust laws. More than $2,000,000 was spent by the temporary national economic committee to get the facts about the concentration of economic control in America. No recommendations have yet been made and the administration has not put forth its answer or its solution. Now comes a blitzkrieg of criminal and civil prosecutions at a time of international crisis.

Until the New Deal has a plan to handle the anti-trust situation which can be passed upon by congress, the wisdom of placing a $2,000,000 appropriation in the hands of the largest staff of lawyers ever assembled for the purpose of baiting business and industry will grow more apparent. At a time when business and industry are being asked to coordinate and plan for the most critical demands of all times, the wrecking crews in the department of justice continue their tactics of harassment. Their purpose is, of course, wholly one of economic partisanship. A calculated attempt by foreign influences, however, to break down the morale and efficiency of the American industrial system could not possibly do a better job than is being done now to disrupt our industrial and economic system under the guise of help to the "consumer." It will not help national defense.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

"Total Defense"—Stalled

Last Friday the Washington correspondent of "The New York Sun," Mr. Phelps Adams, stated that "that great armada of fighting planes which President Roosevelt promised Congress and the American people more than two months ago is not even on order today. The money has been appropriated, the flying services know what they want, the manufacturers are ready to expand, but a confusion of rules has brought about such a snarl that no contracts are expected to be signed for some months."

Mr. Adams went on to say that of the vast sums appropriated for the fiscal year 1941, the War Department has contracted to spend "exactly $900,378 on a handful of two-engine advanced training planes," but that no new contracts have been signed for bombers, pursuit or combat planes of any kind. No one has, I think, will question the accuracy of Mr. Adams's statements; in fact, he could have gone further. For what he reported about aviation contracts is no less true in the absolutely vital matter of expanding the production of armor plate for the Navy and for tanks. There, too, the contracts are ready. But they are not signed, and operations, which at best will require years to produce results, have not yet been begun. They have not been begun because the Administration and Congress have not cleared the way for them.

Defense Isn't Being Given White Light

It is important to the country that the situation should be understood. For even if this particular obstacle can be removed by a sufficiently loud protest from the country, the state of mind which has produced it will raise up new obstacles. The fact of the matter is that the politicians and the bureaucrats in Washington, while professing to put "total defense" above all other considerations, have not yet seriously begun to put the national defense above all other considerations.

At the moment the great contracts to expand the facilities for producing armaments are stalled over the question of tax amortization. But I am credibly informed that while the Advisory Commission has been struggling with the White House, the Treasury, and Congress to remove the tax obstacle, the Department of Justice has been on the point of launching one of the greatest anti-trust suits of all time against the oil industry; it has been getting ready to proceed with a lawsuit which would take years to try and would occupy the attention of the leaders of the industry at the very moment when the executives of that industry are being called upon to use their brains and their energy in organizing to produce synthetic rubber and aviation gasoline and a number of other critical commodities. So whatever the Administration's publicity agents may say about it, the fact is that the national defense is not being organized with the full, sincere, and single-minded co-operation of the whole government.

Tax Amortization Is Stumbling Block

This is a serious charge. But in the light of the known and indisputable facts about the tax amortization question, which has stalled the airplane and armor plate contracts, the charge is, I submit, incontrovertible. And though the question is a technical one, no expert knowledge of taxation is needed to see what is the trouble in Washington today.

This in simple terms is the problem: in order to make the new warships, the airplanes, and the mechanized equipment for the Army, it is necessary to build and equip large additional plants and factories. This requires the investment of new capital, supplied in part by the government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and in part by existing aviation, steel, and other companies. As regards the new capital to be supplied by the government, the problems have, it appears, been solved satisfactorily. But as regards the new capital privately supplied, two questions naturally arise: first the repayment, or debt amortization as it is called, of the borrowed money—a problem which is solved in the prices agreed upon in the contracts; and second, the question of how in calculating taxes the depreciation, or tax amortization, shall be calculated. This is the obstacle. For without new legislation the tax requirements are such that the companies will not sign the contracts and go to work.

So Defense Has To Wait For Arguments

Now it is not necessary to discuss the rights and wrongs of just how tax amortization ought to be arranged. There is general agreement. What is holding up everything is the fact that the President and the Treasury are insisting upon tying up this particular tax amendment with the larger general question of the taxation of war profits. And since it might take Congress many weeks to write a general tax bill, the simple and indispensable amendment of the existing laws must wait too, and its enactment must depend on a rough and tumble political debate about "war profits." So the airplanes have to wait, the armor plate has to wait, the Navy has to wait, the Army has to wait for an amendment which everybody agrees is necessary even to begin to arm this nation.

If some great, disputed principle were involved in the tax amortization amendment, it would still be wrong to tie it up with and confuse it with all the other questions of war finance. But there is no dispute about the amendment. It has been tied to the disputed question of war finance for no good reason at all unless it be the disgraceful political reason that the tax laws cannot be relaxed at all in favor of business corporations without at the same political moment imposing new taxes on business corporations. Whatever the reason, the fact remains that a technical change in the tax laws is being held up even though the whole armament program is stalled in the process. Whatever the reason, it is not a reason arising out of a whole-hearted purpose to arm this nation rapidly.

Washington Not Yet Serious About It

Perhaps the Administration can be induced to reverse itself on the matter, and let the contracts be signed. But that will not be enough. For new obstacles will arise as long as the President and the Administration and Congress, including leaders of both parties, and the country do not acquire the conviction that the task of arming is urgent and serious and that it cannot be done slowly, half-heartedly, and by men who are not really interested in it to the exclusion of every political consideration.

Such a state of mind does not as yet exist in Washington, and unless the country wakes up and then wakes up its politicians, it is headed for the rudest shocks and most unpleasant experiences in its history. For the fact of the matter is that the nation is passive, unnecessarily and inexcusably, while its vital security is at stake in the great battles for the control of the seas. The fact of the matter is that the country is assuming obligations and responsibilities which are inescapable but are tremendous. The fact is that the country is not seriously preparing itself. The Administration which is supposed to realize how critical and urgent is the problem of our defense is, as we have seen, trifling with the armament program. And the Republican opposition in Congress if one is to judge by its articulate spokesmen, is fast asleep and sunk in dreams of a world that no longer exists.

Texas in Roosevelt Camp; Willkie Will Visit South

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—While Wendell Willkie has made substantial popular gains in the few weeks since his nomination, the difficulties of his carrying the biggest southern state, Texas, appear to be great at the beginning of the race, Texas bolted the Democratic ticket once, in the Smith-Hoover race of 1928, and the Willkie forces are going to make every effort to crack this state again. But a state-wide survey completed by the Institute since both candidates were nominated indicates that Texas is one southern state predominantly for Roosevelt and the Democrats at the present time.

The survey, part of the Institute's nation-wide poll on the Roosevelt-Willkie race, was completed just before Willkie announced his plan to invade the south for a campaign tour beginning in Texas. At asked a cross-section of Texas voters: "If the presidential election were held today, would you vote for Willkie or for Roosevelt?"

Those expressing a choice—and only one voter in ten (9 per cent) had no opinion—voted as follows:

Roosevelt: 85%
Willkie: 15%

Although this is an overwhelming Democratic vote, the Roosevelt percentage is below what it was in previous years and below what it was two months ago just before the nomination of Willkie by the Republicans.

| | P.C. | P.C. |
|--------------------------------------------------|------|------|
| | Dem. | Rep. |
| 1932 Election | 89% | 11% |
| 1936 Election | 88% | 12% |
| June, 1940 Institute Survey (Before Conventions) | 92% | 8% |
| Today | 85% | 15% |

Texas is the third state whose sentiment on the Willkie-Roosevelt race has been reported by the Institute. In the other two, California and Pennsylvania, the swing to the Republicans has been more marked. A 14-point drop in Roosevelt's popularity today as compared to 1936 was found in California. In Pennsylvania Willkie was shown with a slight lead (52 per cent) today.

All of the interviewing in these surveys was done after the two candidates had been nominated by their respective parties. The results represent opinion only as of the beginning of the presidential race, however. There are many things that may alter opinion in the coming months—not only the campaign itself, but perhaps most important of all the course of events in Europe.

Changes in sentiment, if they occur, will be recorded by the Institute through its regular and continuous surveys, which will be reported at intervals of approximately two weeks until the final month of the campaign, when reports will be made weekly.

come back. I'll look after the house and the cat and—you see, this is best?"

"No, I don't see it, still if it's what you want, Norma." Jan felt sure something had happened to disturb again the pleasant, tranquil relationship of Norma and Lance. Her apprehension was further increased when she visited Lance after Rose and Johnny had gone and found him flushed and on edge, but noncommittal. The only clue he gave her was the remark:

"Rose is calling for us in the morning. She offered to drive us to the railroad station in town. Her car is comfortable and it'll save the bother of Frank going along to carry me from the interurban into a taxi and then on the train. Oh, Jan, the doctor has got to fix me up! I don't want to go on living if I can't walk!"

Rose, again

Tears misted her eyes. "I was fearful of this," she murmured. "You promised, Lance, you said it wouldn't make any difference—"

"You don't understand," he told her bitterly.

"But I do understand," she thought, going to her own room. It was Rose again. Oh, Lance deserved better than this. She doubted if Rose could give love to any man. And Norma must have seen or heard something.

"I'd like to take a stick to that Rose!" Jan snapped. Then it occurred to her that although she was, literally, her brother's keeper, she had no right to be, figuratively. Lance was nearly thirty-one years old. Certainly it was his right to make his own choice, his own decisions. "But not at Norma's expense! And no matter what I promised Norma, I'm going to tell Lance it's her money providing this chance for him."

In the morning Jan insisted Frank come with them to the train, determined not to leave Rose and Lance alone for even a moment. Ruth Cronin appeared at the station to assure them she had persuaded Mr. Sobel, the store manager, to write Doctor Murray by air mail, asking that he see Lance at his earliest convenience.

Frank escorted Lance as comfortably as possible in the drawing room compartment on the train, kissed Jan's cheek goodbye, and handed her a heap of hastily-selected magazines and a basket of fruit.

"You look grand," Ruth told her, admiring the tailored suit

Sailor Gunners Down 2 Planes

Edinburgh—(P)—The little coastal steamer "highlander" moved proudly into port today, the wreckage of a German Heinkel bomber on her deck—one of two planes her merchant sailor gunners brought down early today in a fight off the northeast coast.

They said the other plane fell in flames into the sea. Two of the men on the steamer were wounded. The pilot of the first Heinkel apparently fell into the sea.

"We heard bombers circling over the ship," said the first mate, describing the action, "and one of them opened fire on us with cannon and machine guns."

"Our boys held their fire until they got the plane in their sights, then gave it a fast burst."

The first bomber crashed. The other, after machine-gunning the steamer, made off.

Half an hour later it was back, the mate said, but the "highlanders" gunners got it almost at once. The plane caught fire as it fell near-

President Doesn't Regard Johnson as Liberal Democrat

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today that Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican, could not be considered a liberal or progressive Democrat in 1940.

A reporter told the chief executive that the veteran senator, who had supported Mr. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1932, was running for re-nomination on the Democratic, Republican and Progressive tickets. He asked whether the president regarded Johnson as a Democrat.

Replying with a flat no, the president said he did not think anyone would consider Johnson a liberal or progressive Democrat in the year 1940.

He is still very fond of the senator, he said, but added that the Californian certainly has changed a lot in the past four or five years.

Dean Fred has compiled a report on faculty members, instructors and equipment available at the university for defense work. He said he had no specific program in mind but the university was ready to cooperate on any projects the government desired.

Fashion Colors Chosen So You Can Match Them

BY AMY PORTER

Every year about this time, the fashion industry goes into a huddle to decide what colors shall be good for fall.

High-powered executives meet look at swatches, argue, make speeches, call in artists and dye experts.

Finally, they make a solemn announcement. Black and brown will be good for fall. Wine and green and blue and beige will be good, too.

The National Retail Dry Goods Association has just made such an announcement, endorsing these very colors for next fall. It took a committee of 16 to select them.

To a woman who has nothing to do with fashions except as a shopper, it all looks pretty silly. Black, of course. Brown, of course. What else would they pick for fall?

It's Precision Work

The reason for the fuss is that there are so many shades of each color—even of black. From many browns, the committee this year has selected two of the best—a nutria shade and a mink shade. So with other colors. Precise shades are selected, then the committee issues color cards to retailers, manufacturers and designers, for their guidance in assembling your fall clothes.

To you as a shopper, this careful attention to color means that if you buy a teal blue coat, you'll be able to find a teal blue hat to match it exactly. It means that of you want bright brown accessories to go with your green wool frock, you'll be able to find gloves, shoes, hat and bag in the same shade of brown.

With the industry taking all this trouble to bring you good colors, you might well give a little more attention to color yourself.

Do you have prejudices about colors? Perhaps you "can't wear" black, or green, or wine—and perhaps you're mistaken.

This season, try out the new colors you'll find in the shops. Try combinations of coppery brown with black, try gray and brown together. Don't just shake your head when the sales girl brings out a dress in an odd shade of green. Try it on. It may have just enough yellow in it to do something for your hair and eyes.

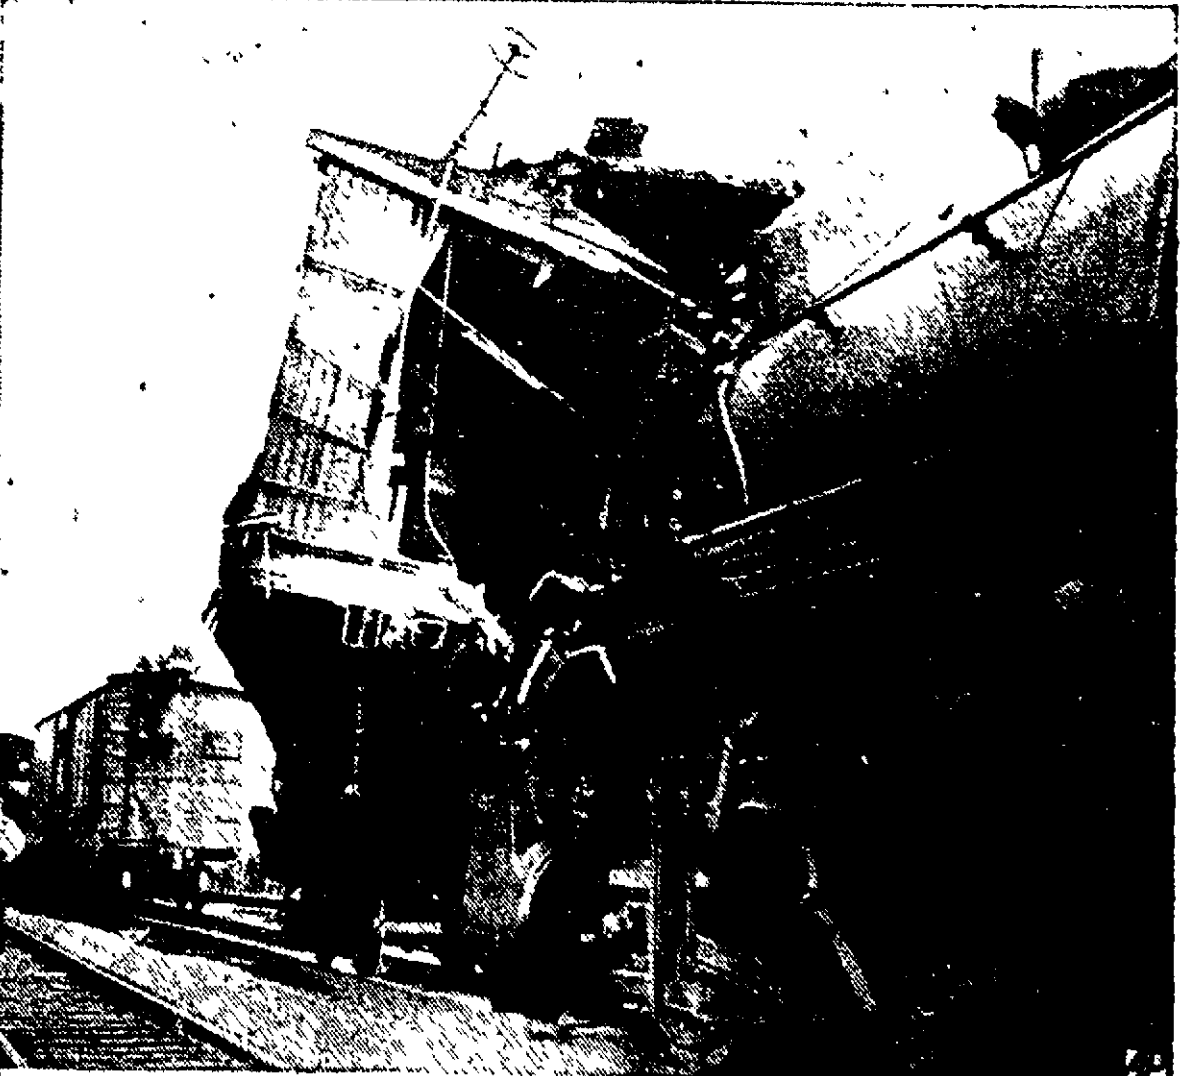

Don't be hampered in your choice of color because you consider yourself a blonde, a brunette, or a brownette. The color of your hair does not mean nearly so much as the color of your skin. Many brunettes look well in the traditional blonde color, chateausse. Many blondes, and redheads, too, look best in red.

If you can't trust your judgment in a shop, experiment at home. Buy big sheets of crepe paper in different shades and BEG YOUR PARDON—That's what this switch engine might have said when it nosed the caboose on the Missouri Pacific Belt Line in Omaha. The caboose shown struck another, causing it to topple into the ditch. Two trainmen escaped with slight injuries.

Rapids-Fondy (not scheduled).
Appleton-LaCrosse (postponed; rain).TONIGHT'S GAMES
Fondy at Rapids (2 games).
LaCrosse at Appleton (2 games; 8:00).
Sheboygan at Green Bay.

Appleton and vicinity has been visited by showers during the last 24 hours and if you look around the streets or hotel lobbies you'll find a couple members of the LaCrosse baseball team. That's the reason for the rain.

The Blackhawks came to town yesterday afternoon and immediately thereafter the skies became sullen and last night, along about the second inning, the said skies started to drip so that the ball game had to be called off.

The records show that LaCrosse is almost a certain harbinger of rain in these parts. At the start of the season it rained when the Hawks first showed up. On their second trip, they were rained out of almost every game in the eastern division of the loop. Their last appearance here, when they played three games, was the only trip on which they didn't bring rain.

But life and the baseball schedule must go on and so tonight two games are scheduled starting at 8 o'clock. LaCrosse will be the opponent and it will be ladies night with a 10 cent service fee for the women.

Last night's exhibition was staged before a fine group of faithfuls who hung around until the umpires finally decided further play was impossible. The game opened with Glen Aronson pitching for the Papermakers and with Les Hoeffken at third base, Torason in right and Standert in left. Hoeffken was at the redlight station because Malattia's injury has finally revealed itself as a fractured bone in the finger. He's out for 10 days or two weeks.

Score Four Runs
Aronson got by the first inning when the Papermakers turned in a snappy double play. Hoeffken to Malattia, and the third batter was out stealing second.

Appleton scored four times in its half the game. With Bain pitching and his control wobbly, Malattia and Dancisk drew walks. Hawk moved them along with a sacrifice and then Chell rolled one down the right field foul line for a double and Malattia and Dancisk tallied. Hoeffken rolled to short but Torason took a toe hold and smashed a home run to the left field fence scoring Chell ahead of him.

With two away in the second, Aronson lost his control and walked a batter, the next singled and the next walked. Bain then tripled to right cleaning the sacks. Schadt fled to retire the side with Appleton leading 4 to 3.

The game was halted with Appleton at bat.

Two special features have been arranged for tonight in addition to the ball game. The Legion drum and bugle corps will make a public appearance for about 15 minutes. The other stunt will be presented by Schroeder, second baseman for the Blackhawks. He is credited with being another Al Schacht and his pantomime and slow motion stunts are guaranteed to have the customers rolling in the aisles.

BAYS TAKE SHORT ONE
Green Bay — The Bluejays extended their winning streak to six games last night when they won a five inning session from Sheboygan, 3 to 2. The Indians tied the score in the sixth but the skies started to drip and the game reverted back to the fifth.

Lefty Dick Williams, released by Appleton, was on the mound for Sheboygan. He gave up only four hits in the five heats but one was a homer to Novak with one on and the other a homer to Stroud.

Softball Teams are Stopped by Rain
After 4 1-2 Innings

Kimberly — Kimberly A. A. softballers defeated Kaukauna Klub 4 to 1 in four and a half innings when rain stopped everything at the ball park last night. J. Lom, pitching for Kimberly, allowed the visitors two hits while Powers, on the mound for Kaukauna, was nipped for seven.

With the bases loaded in the fourth frame and the score tied 1 all, the Papermakers scored three runs on three hits and a walk and Paul Albers' double.

The Papermakers opened the first frame with a run on three hits. Sarrison and Courchane laid down safe bunts while Hofkins singled.

Kaukauna got a hit and a run in the second frame. Giordana walked, W. Van Abel got on by an error and Dean singled. Giordana scored while Van Abel was caught at home. The visitors got another hit in the third frame when McCormick singled with one out but the next two batters went down in order.

Lom singled to open the third frame but remained on base while the next three batters went out. In the Papermakers big frame, Hofkins singled, U. Wildenberg doubled and E. Vanden Bogaard walked to fill the bags. P. Albers hit a hard double which pushed in three runners.

Kimberly softballers were scheduled to meet Borden softballers of New London here Tuesday evening, but due to Sonny Wildenberg's baseball game that evening, the softball tilt was called off. Kimberly A. A. will travel to Niagara for a game Aug. 18.

Galan Out for Rest of Season

Runs Into Concrete
Wall and Hurts Leg;
Future Is Doubtful

Philadelphia — Augie Galan looked glumly into the future today and saw at least 15 more days in Temple hospital, no more baseball this season and a question mark in his major league future.

Galan, hard hitting Cub leftfielder, ran headlong into a concrete wall at Shibe park yesterday while chasing a foul fly in the Chicago-Phillie game. He suffered a fractured left knee cap and a bruised right knee.

Ironically, the fracture was on the same knee that was injured by Galan two years ago in a collision with another player.

"The leg was beginning to feel perfect," Galan said today. "The muscles around the knee had been badly torn, but if it had not been for yesterday's accident, I don't believe it would have given me any more trouble."

"I don't think I'll be able to play any more this year—in fact I am sure I can't."

Kids Prefer to Have Greenberg at First

New York — (P) — When Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tigers star, showed up to tutor youthful baseballers at the Worlds Fair school of baseball, he opened his talk with tips on playing the outfield.

The hundreds of youngsters on hand, however, would have little of that. At their shouted requests, Hank moved back to his old love, first base, and showed the youngsters how he played that position before he was moved to the outfield this year.

When the Boston strong boy walked down the street traffic came to a halt. He made a bid for a seat in congress, gave interviews on such diplomatic problems as foreign policy. Nothing stumped him. When he was introduced to the Prince of Wales in the eighties he reportedly stuck out his hand and boomed: "Glad to meetcha, often heard of you."

Tunney gained a measure of fame through his sudden devotion to the classics, especially Shakespeare's works, but in this matter he was a Johnny-come-lately. In his sunnier years, Sullivan became an avid Shakespearean scholar.

Eagles collected four runs in the fourth stanza on three walks and three hits. They added two more in the fifth for the winning margin. Y. M. C. A. scored its first tally in the fifth frame. Kranzsch and Fredricks laced out home runs.

Dietzen fanned 10 Y. M. C. A. batters and issued two walks. Y. M. C. A. used three hurlers who could only strike out three and issued ten walks.

Par Taking It On the Chin in Milwaukee Play

Indiana Ace Cards
64 in Pro-Amateur
Pre-Tourney Event

Milwaukee — (P) — A field of 185 golfers, including most of the nation's crack amateur and professional shotmakers, teed off in the $5,000 Milwaukee open tournament for a first round assault today on par, already tottering under the impact of a score of beatings administered in the preliminary best-ball event.

Ralph (Bud) Williamson, pro of Fort Wayne, Ind., indicated the drubbing par may take in the medal play when he carded a red-hot 64, seven under regulation figures for the North Hills course, as a member of yesterday's winning pro-amateur best ball team.

Partner with Williamson on the winning dark-horse team, Harvey Reidemann, 21, of Watertown, Wis., provided one of the day's surprises by turning in an individual count of 67 to pace a strong amateur contingent. Williamson and Reidemann had a score of 62 in the pro-amateur event.

Twenty-one others also turned in par-shattering cards, playing under almost ideal weather conditions, and indications were that the regulation figure would continue to receive a thorough going-over unless rain bogged down the course prior to Sunday's 36-hole finals.

Milward Gets 66
The par-shattering contingent yesterday included Jimmy Milward, Madison, Wis., pro, whose 66 was second-best individual card of the day. Pros Tommy Armour, of the Chicago Medinah club; Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N. Y., posted 67s.

Jim Forrier, Australian amateur and open champ, and Johnny Bulla, hard-hitting Chicago pro, were among those with 68's.

Ed Oliver, Hornell, N. Y., pro and St. Paul open titleholder, stroked out an even par 71, along with Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Calif., amateur; Willie Goggin, Californian who tied for second in the St. Paul meet; and Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill.

Sam Snead, Shawnee-on-Delaware pro, and Wilford Wehrle, Chicago amateur, blasted out 69's, one better than Dick Metz, Chicago open winner.

Today's starting field also included the veteran Walter Hagen of Detroit. Ryder cup team captain. Milward and his partner, Bobby March, also of Madison, tied at 63 for second place in the best-ball event along with Armour and Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif., the former tennis professional champion.

The 64 bracket, out of the money, included F. G. Leonard-Gordon Kummer, Milwaukee; Dutch Harrison, Little, Ark., and Dick Matchette, Milwaukee; Johnny Bulla, Chicago, and Sammy Ruskin, Milwaukee; and Hines and Yockey, Jr., Milwaukee.

Also finishing out of the best ball money were such favored two-somes as Snead and Wehrle; Revolta, and George Johnson, Jr., Oconomowoc; Metz and Burleigh Jacobs, Jr., former Wisconsin amateur champion; and Francis Gallett, Milwaukee, and Lyn Lardner, Jr., Oconomowoc, the 1940 Wisconsin amateur titleholder.

62 Pound Salmon Taken
After It Breaks Rod

Seattle — (P) — Gordon Dean landed a 62-pound king salmon, largest believed ever taken on sports tackle. "He hit so hard he broke my rod leaving a stump about two feet long above the reel," Dean, a druggist, said. "My partner and I worked half an hour before we got him up to the boat, and then we had a hard time gaffing him and getting him out of water."

Cleveland Releases Lanky Rookie Hurler

Cleveland — (P) — The Cleveland Indians announced today that Mike Naymick, lanky rookie pitcher, has been released to their Wilkesbarre, Pa., farm under a 24-hour recall option.

Naymick had worked on the mound but a few times in recent weeks.

To replace him, the Indians called up Calvin Dorsett, righthander, who has won eight and lost two for Wilkesbarre, Eastern league club. Dorsett was expected to report to Cleveland today.

Ty Cobb Says Bobby Feller Can't Be Rated as Great as Johnson

BY BILL WHITE
New York — (P) — Tennis tidbits: Alice Marble stayed out of the East Hampton tennis tourney this week to work on her lecture "The Will to Win" with which she'll thrill the hinterlands this winter. . . . Minneapolis' 17-year-old cutie, Muriel Magnuson, is being ballyhooed in the east as la Marble's successor — if Alice ever quits winning. . . . Don McNeill won a lot of friends when he played two sets with that ball boy after winning the national clay courts title at Chicago.

One Minute Interview
Ty Cobb: "Bobby Feller's first rate, but he's no Walter Johnson. Why, Johnson won all those games in spite of the fact that we all knew just what he was going to throw us before he threw it."

Today's Guest Star
Charlie Landolf, New Castle (Pa.) News: "It was only natural for the Dodgers to bring up Ed Head from Elmira. The twirler started out as a south-paw pitcher, suffered a broken arm and converted himself into a right hander."

Only two pitchers, Walter Johnson and Lefty Grove have ever won the American league's most valuable player award. . . . Wanta bet the third won't be Bobby Feller this fall? . . . Why do the ump's in the so-hot Texas league have to wear coats? . . . First batch of basketball ballyhoo comes from the Iowa State Teachers college who'll be tougher'n a streetful of dead end kids.

When the Waner brothers were the "faculty" at the world's fair baseball school the other day, the star pupil was a fellow called Buckley Walters, a reformed third baseman. He "snuck" in and sat in the audience, and when apprehended afterwards said modestly "I'd a lot rather listen to the Waner brothers than pitch against 'em."

Frank Kovacs Has Own Way Of Correcting Tennis Faults

Southampton, N. Y. — (P) — Tennis doesn't know why this cure works, but he is satisfied that it does.

The young player from Oakland, Calif., has tried all these stunts and a good many others during the course of this summer's tournament play. Perhaps he wouldn't prescribe them for anyone else, but in his case they seem to relieve the tension of a hard match or to do something which enables him to settle down and play his best.

Other cures which Kovacs has been known to use:

For trouble with your footwork, stop the match, call for scissors and cut your slacks down to shorts; if you're already wearing shorts, take your socks off, bite the ball, punch a line in the nose, visit an adjoining court and watch the match there, do anything—but for Pete's sake be funny.

Kovacs couldn't try all these remedies for erratic play yesterday but his outbursts entertained the gallery more than once in the course of his tough match with George Toley of Los Angeles in the quarter final round of the Meadow club invitation tournament. Six times in the second set Toley reached match point but Kovacs finally won 4-6, 14-12, 6-1.

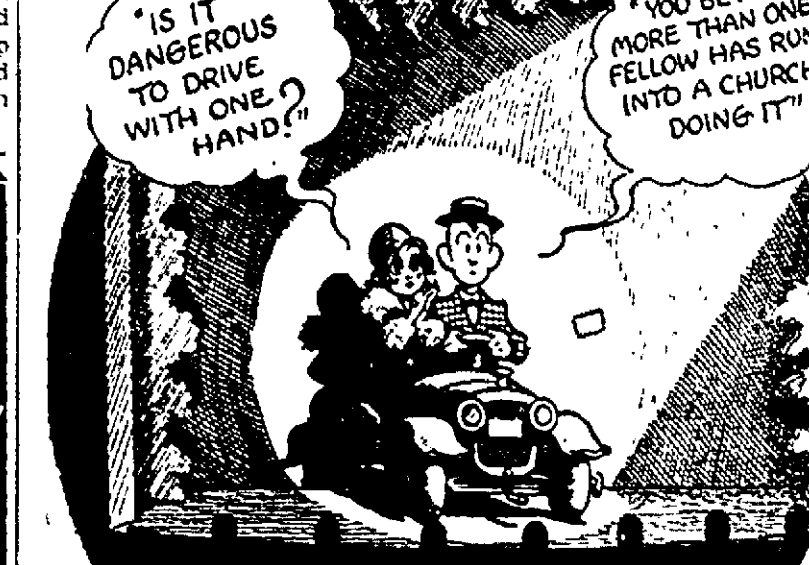

He may have to invest some new remedies today when he faces national champion Bobby Riggs in the semi-final. For Bobby, cool and methodical, hammered out a 6-4, 8-6 victory over Hank Prusoff of Seattle. In the other half of the draw, Elwood Cooke, 6-4, 6-4 winner over young Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., takes on Don McNeill, who eliminated Frank Guernsey, 6-3, 6-2.

Schoolboy Rowe's Hurling Keeps Tigers in Flag Race

Beats Yanks With 7 Hits Chi Sox Cop

By The Associated Press

Schoolboy Rowe, who kept the Detroit Tigers on top of the American league in two glorious pennant years when he had one of the best arms in baseball, is still holding them up there. He defeated the New York Yankees 11-2 yesterday.

For a while this spring no one knew whether the big fellow's right arm was well again. He opened the season with a five-hit triumph over Cleveland but his next venture saw him belted off the mound in the second inning.

Today his record of nine victories and two defeats is ample testimony that the schoolboy is doing all right. The only pitcher in the American league with a better mark is teammate Buck Newsom, who has won 13 and lost 3.

It has been in the critical period since Newsom broke his thumb July 17 that Rowe had proved his greatest value to the Tigers, because, taking his regular turn, he has won three consecutive starts.

Allows Seven Hits
He pitched seven-hit ball against the New York Yankees yesterday and personally batted in three runs with a triple and a double.

This was enough to give the Tigers exclusive possession, again, of first place in the junior circuit and also dropped the Yankees out of the first division by a fraction of a percentage point.

The Boston Red Sox took care of clipping Cleveland out of the leadership claim with a 5-2 victory and the Chicago White Sox nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics 5-4 in 11 innings to get its first taste of the rarified upper division air this year.

Jimmie Foxx, as usual, was the bellwether for Boston, hitting his twenty-second homer of the season with one on in the sixth to put the Red Sox in front, where they were able to stay on the seven-hit pitching of Fritz Ostermuller.

Chiefly because Sam Chapman hit a two-run homer in the fifth, the A's kept in front of Chicago right up until the ninth inning, but the White Sox outscored Nelson Potter for one run here and another run there until he became so annoyed in the eleventh inning that he walked three men, forcing in the winning counter without the benefit of either a hit or an error.

Sox in 1st Division
The victory, their eleventh in the last fourteen games, lifted the Sox into fourth place a fraction of a percentage point ahead of the Yankees. The Sox have a percentage of .5164 while the Yanks have .5161.

The Boston Red Sox took care of clipping Cleveland out of the leadership claim with a 5-2 victory and the Chicago White Sox nosed out the Philadelphia Athletics 5-4 in 11 innings to get its first taste of the rarified upper division air this year.

The National league action was limited to one doubleheader in which the Brooklyn Dodgers cleaned up on the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-3 and 8-7. The first game was all Whitlow Wyatt's as he coasted along on seven-hit flinging.

The second was notable for seven errors that kept the score see-sawing until Harry Lavagetto banded the deciding run around with a double in the seventh inning. Chiefly because reliever pitcher Hugh Casey allowed no hits in the last four innings, the Pirates were held to six safeties, although Brooklyn used four hurlers.

HUNTERS PLAN HOME DEFENSE
By Jimmy Robinson
Several thousand hunters, rifle-men, trap and skeet shots, and other sportsmen familiar with sporting firearms, from twenty states now have applied for membership in the modern minute-man, civilian organization, known as the Sportsmen's Home Defense League, according to its president, Walter C. Peacock, trapper and veteran hunter of Chicago.

The new movement, started only a few weeks ago, has received favorable response from sportsmen generally. Mr. Peacock pointed out. It is the hope of the founders that the sportsmen eventually will set up state organizations, but until that is done, those who wish may join the parent body, the majority of whose present members are from Illinois. As the various states set up their own organizations, Mr. Peacock said, the parent group will turn the existing membership affiliations back to the states.

For Emergency Use
The home defense group, the organizers have specified, would be used only in case of a national emergency, and would have no connection with the army, navy or national guard.

Mr. Peacock pointed out that modern blitzkrieg methods of warfare, which include the landing of parachute troops, can render forts and trenches of little use for defense purposes, as has been shown in Europe. If, by any chance, any enemy should employ such tactics in a war on this country, members of a local defense group in a surprised area might be able to perform a great duty until regular army units could be rushed to the scene to take charge of the situation, he said.

We shall not attempt to estimate what the chances are that such defense would ever become necessary; we only are reporting on a movement that is attracting interest. Because many sportsmen have made inquiries regarding membership, we herewith are printing an application blank that may be filled out and sent to William T. Lodge, Secretary of the Sportsmen's Home Defense League, Monticello, Ill.

Congregational won its fourth straight game of the second round by nosing out Mt. Olive, 7 to 6, in a tight Church league tussle at Roosevelt school diamond last evening. Woehler fanned 13, walked 2 and gave up eight hits for the winners. Brinkman mounded for the winners and struck out 12, gave only six hits but walked 11.

Mt. Olive took a 1-run edge in the first inning when S. Krueger singled, went to second on a pass ball and scored on Steger's single. Congregational knotted the count in the second when Schwandt, Bayley and Horton walked to load the bases and Schwandt plated on a singled by Kruse.

In the third frame, Mt. Olive counted two runs as Brinkman and Jahne singled, coming home on Steger's second single. Congregational came back with two runs for a 4-4 deadlock in the same frame when Bowers walked and Woehler singled, both men scoring on Rule's double. Congregational took a 1-run edge in the sixth when Bowers walked, stole second, reached third on a passed ball and scored on a fielder's choice. Congo took a 6-3 lead in the eighth when Woehler singled and Rule and Schwandt walked. Levenez dropped a single in short center field which two men watched fall safe and Woehler and Rule plated.

Trailing by three runs in the ninth, Mt. Olive tied the score when Bill Jahne was safe on an error. Steger singled and Brinkman was safe on an error, two men reaching home. Brinkman counted on L. Krueger's single. Congregational scored the winning market when Dutcher singled, went to second on a passed ball and scored when Elias hit to the infield and a play was made at third.

Representatives of league teams will meet at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A.

Race Tightens In N. E. Loop

Van's Valley Stock Takes Drop in Loss To Duck Creek Nine

N. E. WISCONSIN LEAGUE
W. L. Pct.
Van's Valley 8 3 .793
Hebels 7 3 .700
Denmark 7 4 .693
Duck Creek 5 6 .455
Elfers 5 6 .455
Oneida 0 11 .000

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Elfers at Denmark.
Hebels at Duck Creek.
Oneida at Van's Valley.

If Van's Valley expects to continue in first place in the Northeastern Wisconsin league, it must play heads-up ball for the remainder of the games, although it will have an easy time Sunday when Oneida is its opponent. The Valley stock took a drop last Sunday when Duck Creek gained a five-run lead and held Van's Valley to put three counters. The Valley loss was matched only by the Hebel defeat at the hands of Denmark in a tight 2 to 1 contest.

The losses by the leaders placed Denmark well into the running again for the title after being well down the list. It is now but a game behind the Valley, and Hebels has only a half game lead on the Danes. Further defeats by the holders of first and second places will bring Denmark into a tie or into the lead.

Denmark meets Elfers Sunday, and with the possibility of climbing over the .500 mark for the season, the Cheesemen will be tough customers. Hebels has its hands full at Duck Creek and Tomlin will be stretched to the limit to hold down the Creek sluggers. To stay in second position, the Hebelmen must win Sunday and, although Duck Creek is well out of the running, it is bent on doing as much damage as possible and ending up in the first division.

Jake Scores Upset in Western Net Match
Gambier Ohio—U—Bobby Jake of Milwaukee, upset Bill McCurry of Oklahoma City, 8-4, 7-5, in the junior singles of the Western junior and boys' tennis tournament yesterday.

Jake then teamed up with Walter Stuckert of Milwaukee to administer a 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 beating to Jack Kenny of Cleveland and Jack Southworth of Pittsburgh.

Anderson, Faurot Only Coaches Sure Of All-Star Posts
Chicago—U—Balloting in the nation-wide football coaching poll indicated today that Iowa's Eddie Anderson and Missouri's Don Faurot were almost certain to land positions on the five-man staff which will direct the all star collegians against Green Bay's pros at Soldier Field Aug. 23.

However, the races in three other sections—the east, south and far west—were so close that the results probably will not be known until the deadline at midnight Aug. 4.

Anderson headed the Big Ten conference section with a total of 2,460,407 points. Faurot topped the middle west section with 1,364,515. They were the only coaches to hit the million figure. The sectional winner with the highest vote total will draw the head coaching assignment in the annual charity game.

Kansas City—U—The Kansas City Blues, American association league leaders, extended their first place margin to 10 games and ran their winning streak to 11 straight victories by scoring a 5 to 1 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers last night.

Charley Stanceu had little trouble with the Brewers, holding them to six hits while striking out seven. Woody Abernathy, only Brewer who had more than one safety, coined a double and triple off Stanceu. B. Kline, the losing hurler, kept pace with Stanceu until the fourth. Frank Makosky took up the mound duties in the eighth when Kline was removed for a pinch batter. Manager Ray Schaak of Milwaukee was chased from the game in the seventh for protesting a decision at third base.

Pro Teams May Get Invitation

Lions Club to Study Proposed Use of Park For Football Practice

New London—Efforts to get outside professional football teams to use New London's new Hatten park athletic field and stadium for fall practice will be considered at a special outdoor meeting of the New London Lions club at the Hatten park shelter house Monday evening, according to Dr. George W. Polzin, program chairman.

Other communities in this vicinity are succeeding with the practice and New London's new field is believed to offer facilities superior to any. Members of the park board and the Hatten fund committee also will be invited to the picnic meeting to collaborate on the plan. The field would be used by rehearsing teams for a period of four to six weeks during August and September and it is believed such use of the park would greatly promote public interest in it.

The discussion will follow a 6:30 picnic supper in the shelter house.

Lights Sought For Route 45

New London—Fifteen accidents, one resulting in a fatality and five others producing serious injuries, have occurred at the intersection of Highways 45 and 54 north of the city during the last three years, according to a report completed yesterday by Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin for the state highway department.

The report will be submitted to the highway commission with a petition for the installation of traffic lights at the intersection for which there has been agitation for a long time.

Forty-three arrests for failure to stop at the arterial have been made by New London police during that time, from June 1937 to June 1940, but Chief Macklin pointed out that the arrests represent only a small percentage of the number of motorists who drive through. The report did not include records of county police.

Italian Cheese Production Climbs

Wisconsin's Italian cheese production reached an all-time high last year, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

More than nine million pounds of Italian cheese were made in Wisconsin factories in 1939, which is about 28 per cent more Italian cheese than was produced in the state in 1938. The 1938 production was over seven million pounds.

The production of Italian cheese has increased greatly during the past decade. In 1930 only one million pounds were made in the state, according to the annual reports made by the Wisconsin dairy plants. When the first reports were made in 1921, Wisconsin's output was less than a half a million pounds. Since 1930, figures of Italian cheese production show an increased production for most of the years up to the present.

Wisconsin's Italian cheese production now exceeds that of Limburger and Munster. As with the production of other kinds of cheese, the state's output of Italian cheese is much larger than reports show for any other state.

$695,400 Fund Is Available For Farm Loans

Money to be Used to Purchase Farms Under Bankhead-Jones Act

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Allocation of $695,400 for loans to Wisconsin tenant farmers, for purchase of farms under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant act, has been announced by the Farm Security Administration. Approximately 90 loans will be made to tenant farmers in the 27 Wisconsin counties designated. The average amount of each loan will be $8,000.

The Bankhead-Jones act is designed to make it possible for farm tenants, sharecroppers and farm laborers in the various states and territories to buy family-sized farms of their own through loans from a total of $75,000,000 appropriated for this purpose during the last three years.

Because of the limited funds available, loans can be made only in those counties designated by the secretary of agriculture on the recommendation of voluntary state farm security advisory committees. These committees base their recommendations on farm population and prevalence of tenancy in each county, as well as on the availability of good land at reasonable prices.

Congress authorized FSA to borrow $50,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in order to continue the program during the current fiscal year. A direct appropriation of $2,500,000 was provided to cover costs of administration, which are limited by law to 5 per cent of the funds loaned.

Cereal Grains are Added to Approved List for Crop Loans

Loans on wheat, barley and rye to encourage Wisconsin farmers to help replenish the nation's ever-normal granary and adjust supplies to market needs will be available after harvesting time, according to word received by County Agent J. F. Magnus from the state AAA committee.

Under the loan program, which is financed by the Commodity Credit corporation, farmers store the crops on their farms. This storage is part of a national reserve and also prevents the glutting of markets.

The average loan rate to wheat producers is about 64 cents a bushel. The rates vary at different terminal points and for different types of wheat. The loan rate on rye will be 38 cents a bushel for any rye grading No. 2 or better. Different barley loan rates are: No. 1, 33 cents; No. 2, 34 cents; No. 3, 32 cents; No. 4, 29 cents; No. 5, 25 cents. The barley loan is available for the first time this year.

Crop Conditions Favorable For Good Harvest in State

Wisconsin crop conditions are favorable to a good harvest again this year, according to information received by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent, from the crop reporting service of the state department of agriculture.

June in Wisconsin was a month with plenty moisture and with close to normal temperatures. With little hot weather and with ample rainfall, growing conditions were good for all crops except corn and in some cases potatoes. Pasture conditions are excellent, and the tame hay crop is expected to be much larger than the one harvested last year. Yields of small grains are expected to be above those of 1939, the Service reported.

Wisconsin's tame hay crop this year may exceed the crop harvested last year by more than a million tons although there has been only a slight increase in the acreage as compared with that of 1939. Present estimates indicate that the state will have a hay crop of over 7 million tons, which is about 50 percent above the average crop.

Smaller Corn Crop
While favorable weather conditions can still do much good to the corn crop, present estimates indicate that the Wisconsin corn crop will be about 5 million bushels less than harvested last year. Although the state's corn acreage is about 22,000 acres more than it was in 1939, the yields in many parts of the state are expected to be lower than last year.

With an increase in the acreage and prospects for higher yields than last year, the oat crop may be nearly eight percent larger. Present estimates indicate Wisconsin will have over 761 million bushels or over 51 million bushels more than harvested in 1939. If present estimates materialize the oat crop will be about average. While the barley crop is expected to be smaller than that harvested a year ago, larger crops of wheat and rye are in prospect for the state. Nearly 20 million bushels of barley are forecast for the state. Production of barley, spring wheat, and rye is expected to be below average.

Paltzer Herd High Producer in Testing Unit
Registered Holsteins Average 46.4 Pounds Of Butterfat in July

Robert Paltzer's herd of registered holsteins averaged 494 pounds of butterfat to take production honors during July in the Outagamie County Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 5, according to Merline Wolf, fieldman. Cows in the herd produced 70.1, 65.9 and 65.2 pounds of butterfat to take the first three places in individual production.

The Paul Kroes herd placed second in herd production with an average of 39.2 pounds of butterfat. A cow in the herd produced 62.2 pounds of butterfat to tie for fourth place in individual production with a cow owned by Mike Mack.

Third in herd production was the herd of Bert Zobel with 35.5 pounds. Mrs. E. Paltzer's herd was fourth with 36.3 pounds and the Alfred Techlin herd fifth with 36.2 pounds. There were 84 cows in the testing unit that produced 40 or more pounds of butterfat during the month. Following are owners and number of cows with 40 or more pounds of fat: John Van Asten 3, John Croen 3, Paul Kroes 9, Chester Appleton 2, Clem VandenBerg 3, Clarence Schlamm 3, Ed Vogel 3, Mike Mack 7, Maurice Powers 3, Bernard Mares 1, Henry Smith 3, F. Bachellor 2, A. Lammers 1, B. Zobel 5, Robert Paltzer 12, Alfred Techlin 9, George Thyssen 1, J. Wolfinger 4, H. Oudenhoven 3, Robert Murphy 2, and Mrs. E. Paltzer 5.

Commercial Production Of Chicks on Decline

Commercial production of baby chicks from January through May of this year was 14 per cent smaller than in the corresponding months of 1939, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

An increasingly unfavorable feed-egg ratio as the hatching season advanced was held responsible for this year's smaller hatch. According to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the number of chicks and young chickens in farm flocks on June 1 of this year was 12 per cent below that of a year ago.

DIM LIGHTS FOR SAFETY
Present strength of the National Guard is about 242,000.

List Three Causes For Cannibalism In Turkey Flocks

Cannibalism in turkeys usually is in the form of feather picking, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus from the state department of agriculture.

Three causes are principally responsible for cannibalism. First, turkeys form the habit of wiping their beaks on the feathers of other birds if a mash is fed that is sticky and clings to the beaks. Later, they pick these particles from the feathers and this leads to feather picking.

Lack of bulk in the ration may be another cause of cannibalism. The first six or eight weeks the poults may not show any feather picking but are likely to start at that age. A variety of green feed or roughage in the ration often modifies this habit or may prevent it from starting.

Close confinement may be a third cause of cannibalism.

Arguments Waged Over Cheese Price

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Argument over the policies of the state department of agriculture toward the alleged problem of monopoly control of the Wisconsin cheese industry continued this week as the Dane county board carried its plea for state action to Governor Heil and Attorney General John E. Martin and the department vigorously denied the allegations of inactivity and lack of interest which have been lodged against it.

The Dane county board about a year ago set up a special investigating committee to look into the marketing structure of the cheese industry and last week issued a report charging that the industry is the prey of monopolistic price practices and accusing the state department of agriculture of ignoring pleas for help. The department replied briskly and promptly that it has been working on the subject for many months, and added that it has sought for many months to enlist aid from Washington federal agencies for action in a field which is too big for the state to handle.

The Dane county committee, after receiving testimony in three counties in the heavy southern Wisconsin producing areas, asked the cooperation of Governor Heil in obtaining a special counsel under Martin to act on the alleged revelations of monopolistic conditions which are "freezing out the small man."

Martin has announced his willingness to cooperate with the Dane county committee, but has requested proof of some necessary action before his office does anything.

Hollywood—Secret stuff: Margaret Sullavan and Henry Fonda will be heard (but not seen) in Walt Disney's "Bambi," for which Disney is spending a fortune to dub famous voices for his cartoon characters. Declare War on Germany to Save U. S., Rotary Club Told Neenah — "Declare war on Germany at once if you want to save the United States" was the stand of Professor Edwin W. Webster, head of the history department at Ripon college, in a talk at the noon meeting of the Neenah Rotary club Thursday at the Valley Inn.

Stating that "It is too bad we hadn't declared war on Germany before," the historian said that it is still possible to save the battle of Britain and thereby prevent the "battle of New York and Washington."

"We will save our men and our country if we fight Germany now," he asserted. "England doesn't want our army, for it has 1,500,000 men in arms and another 14 million in training. What Britain needs is our merchant marine and our navy for convey so that Germany's blockade will not starve England out."

The college professor told the Rotarians, "If England is defeated, we will become a pawn of Germany. We are the greatest nation in the world because of a divided Europe, and because England and France have the same interests as we have. But if Hitler conquers Europe, he could outbid us 6 to 1."

The United States has an alternative of seeing England to a victory or turning the country into an armed camp. "Then the 14 billion dollars we have appropriated for an army and navy will seem like naught, for we would have to change our economics to military whereby it would be necessary to figure out the minimum on which we could live and use the rest to build war materials."

Starvation Is Key

Claiming that the victor will be the one who can starve the enemy into submission, Professor Webster said that if England holds out during the rest of the summer, and I think she will, there will be a new kind of propaganda sitting into the United States for the purpose of undermining democracy.

He said that Europe will be in a sad condition and the people will be starving. The propaganda will be aimed at America to send food to the starving Europeans, only it won't get to the children, for Hitler will take it for his army. "The United States is the only nation which can force England to break down its blockade which eventually will mean defeat for England."

"America at least is beginning to wake up, but only to the fact that it is faced with a new revolution," Professor Webster stated.

This war is nothing like the World war, which was democracies fighting each other and the result was a few changes in colonies. But this war is a world revolution which started in Germany and has spread to Spain, Italy and Japan. "If it succeeds, the very fundamentals for which we stand, democracy will be overturned."

"It is their belief that all citizens are slaves for the state with no individual freedom and the old German myth, that Germans are super people around whom the world will be built with a series of dependencies."

Hitler said that democracy was decadent and would fall, the historian stated. He was not far wrong, for France was rotten and England took the war casually until after the Norwegian invasion if not the French episode.

Scoring the American myth of isolation, Webster cited numerous cases in American history where this nation has taken part in the balance of power theory.

Future Farmers Return From Trip

Kaukauna — Fourteen Future Farmers of the Kaukauna High school organization, together with the chapters from Seymour, Shiocton, Brillion, Oconto Falls, and Pulaskee, returned this week from a tour through western Wisconsin and Minnesota. The trip was planned by James Judd, agricultural teacher at the Kaukauna High school.

On the tour they visited the strip cropping areas in the western part of this state and the control dams on the Mississippi river. From there they went to the stockyards and packing plants at St. Paul. While in Minneapolis and St. Paul, they visited the state capital, the U. S. Grain Inspections building, radio station WCCO, the Board of Trade and Grain Pit, Fort Snelling, and were special guests at Gene Autry's rodeo.

Leaving Minneapolis they visited the penitentiary at Stillwater, Minn. They made a final stop at Rib Mountain near Wausau on their return home.

Kaukauna Team Hopes For Shot at Pennant In State Tournament

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna American Legion team kept itself in the race for entry into the state tournament by noosing out the Lena American Legion team 4 to 3 in a game played at the ball park here yesterday afternoon.

The Kaukauna team previously regarded itself as out of the running for the state tournament as it had lost games to Oshkosh and Wisconsin Rapids, but has been sent teams to play by the state office. Coach Clifford Kemp of the local team said that a team was eliminated from the race when it had lost two games, but that he did not know the status of the Kaukauna team as it had lost its two games but was still playing champion teams from other sections of the state.

Kaukauna took an early lead in yesterday's game and held it. They scored three runs in the second inning when Lemmers and Peters scored on a double by Reichel, who scored himself when Reichel doubled. Their next run came in the fourth when Lemmers was walked, but crossed the plate as Reichel lined a single.

The Lena American Legion team got its first marker in the fourth inning when Ryteleski doubled and later scored on a fly out. Demborski and Van Voren scored the next two runs when a single by Lemerond drove them homeward in the fifth inning. From then on only one of their men reached first base and that was on a walk.

Kaukauna North Side Once Bought for 2 Barrels of Rum

Kaukauna—The north side of the city of Kaukauna at one time had a sale value of two barrels of rum. That was in 1793 when Dominique Ducharme decided to pay the Menominee Indian chiefs for the 1800 acres of land which he had been living on for the previous three years.

It was in 1790 that Dominique Ducharme sailed up the Fox river and had to portage his boat around the Grand Cacalin rapids where the city now stands. Sensing the possibilities of the location he built a trading post on the west side of the river on the land now occupied by the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company. It is this home which Kaukauna celebrates as its sesquicentennial marker.

This land sale was the first sale direct from the Indians and his trading post and house constituted Wisconsin's first homestead. For this land, which measured one mile along the river front and three miles deep he gave a barrel of rum to both Tobacco and Wabisi.

Several of the younger Menominee chiefs a few years later claimed that they also had a right to this land that was sold to Ducharme and in order to pacify them and keep the land, Ducharme paid an extra three barrels of rum.

Dominique sold this land to his bachelor brother Paul in 1800. Four years later Paul sold a part of the land to Augustin Grignon for approximately 4,500. This land had been in the hands of the Grignons for 135 years when the Outagamie county board of supervisors purchased it for a county park.

This property was surveyed by Albert Ellis, then surveyor-general of the territory of Wisconsin in 1828 and the deed Dominique had obtained from the Indians was recorded in December of that year, when the first courthouse in Brown county was opened.

In 1837 the Grignons built their "mansion in the woods" which still stands. A WPA grant will restore the house to appear as it did soon after it was built.

The several hundred acres that Paul Ducharme kept for himself were deeded by Paul to Judge John Lawe of Green Bay, to whom he was in debt. The removal of the Stockbridge Indians to Calumet county ended the fur trading business in which Paul was engaged. Paul owed Judge Lawe for goods which he had purchased but was unable to pay for.

Judge Lawe in 1839 turned the property over to his son George who came here and built a home, part of which is incorporated into the present clubhouse of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Kaukauna—Standings in the city league remained at a standstill last night at Kappell's Tavern and Goldin Metals battled to a 2 to 2 tie, with the game called at the end of the ninth because of darkness.

The Goldin Metals scored the first run in the first inning when Winn, who had singled, crossed the plate. They added their next run in the fourth when Cliff Kemp was forced home as Kappell was given a base on balls.

The Taverns came from behind in the sixth inning to get a run as Schuler scored on a single by Billy Alger, and tied the score in the seventh when Schuler's single sent O. Alger to the plate.

The game then went into extra innings and at the end of the ninth was called due to darkness.
